Speeds $686,000 Program to Make WPA Jobs

COUNTY ACTS TO PROVIDE WORK FOR 750

Bids for Federal Aid on Road and Ditch Improvements; Gets Tentative OK.

CITY JOB NEARLY READY

$75,000 Woodland Water Line Extension to Start in 10 Days, Calls for 100 Men.

Stirred by a report from district WPA officials that Richland county had not made projects available for federal aid, County Engineer Howard C. Sword prepared today to bid for WPA funds for two county road and ditch projects totaling $686,000.

The projects, one of which already has received tentative state approval, would provide work for about 750 men, but not all at one time, Sword said. The county has 712 men eligible for jobs on federal works projects who are idle because no projects have been provided, District WPA Director J. L. Kelly said.

Would Add 100 Later.

Meanwhile, the city of Mansfield is ready to put 100 men to work within 10 days on the $75,000 Woodland water lines extension project. Another 100 workers would be added later after $64,000 in waterworks bonds are sold, Glenn Weller, city WPA engineer, said. Materials purchased with WPA funds will be available within 10 days or two weeks.

Preliminary plans for a $500,000 county-wide road and bridge program will be drafted next week by County Engineer Sword and Deputy Engineer Walter E. Rusk. They are already revamping a ditch program which was approved by state WPA officials but rejected at Washington because the project was too small and plans were described as incomplete.

Would Employ 500.

The ditch project, totaling $186,000, would provide work for nearly 500 men during the summer months. The larger road and bridge project would make work for 250 men for a year, Sword said. A smaller bridge program, which has been in progress for several months, will expire in July.

Figures released yesterday from state WPA offices showed that 595 persons are now employed on work relief jobs in the county, which is about half the number in other counties of the same popula-

Trusty' 'Steals" 4 Hours of Freedom, Costs Him 2 Years

Joseph Webb, 23, Ohio State reformatory trusty, had four hours of stolen freedom yesterday and today he was paying the penalty—two years of additional time.

Webb was captured by a posse of railroad detectives, reformatory officers and deputy sheriffs last night as he hid in a clump of weeds along the Pennsylvania railroad tracks less than two miles from the institution.

He escaped yesterday afternoon from institution greenhouses, located outside the prison walls, where he was at work as a trusty.

Superintendent Arthur L. Glattke said Webb's sentence has been extended the usual two years for his short fling at freedom.

Webb was committed June 3, 1935 from Lawrence county on a charge of burglary and larceny, for a one to 15-year term.

Selassie's Plea Meets Deaf Ears

Spokesman of Emperor Says Ethiopians Will Fight to End.

BULLETIN

GENEVA — (AP) — The last hopes of Haile Selassie of blocking an Anglo-French move to recognize Italy's conquest of his Ethiopian empire vanished today as a majority of the delegates of the League of Nations Council declared in favor of recognition.

(By International News Service)

GENEVA—So ill and worn he was compelled to have a spokesman talk for him, former Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia fought his last battle for Abyssinian independence today.

He vowed before the League of Nations Council that his followers, straining at the yoke of Italian imperialism, would continue war against the Italian invaders "without quarter or mercy."

His impassioned speech, delivered by Ato Taezaz, his advisor, apparently fell on deaf ears. For after Viscount Halifax, British foreign secretary, and French Finance Minister Georges Bonnet had pleaded for the right of individual recognition as a safeguard against international war, the impression prevailed in the council chamber that Ethiopia as the king of kings once ruled it had ceased to exist.

* * *

Opening the tense and dramatic council before packed galleries, Lord Halifax warned that failure to recognize the Fascist victory over Ethiopia would plunge Europe into war.

As soon as Halifax finished speaking, the frail ex-emperor of Ethiopia arose and opened his last-ditch, fore-doomed battle to retain his title of Abyssinian Negus.

In quiet tones, and speaking in French, Selassie explained that because of his physical condition he was forced to request his advisor, Ato Taezaz, to read his speech.

* * *

Reading the speech prepared by the Negus, Taezaz said:

"We still have faith in the league covenant. But at present the attitude is 'everybody for himself.' The League covenant and the Kellogg-Briand treaty are being torn up.

"Aggression is becoming contagious. International morality is being killed by nations where fear reigns.

"God forgive them!"

Roosevelt Letter, Requesting Him to Run Again, Bared.

SAN FRANCISCO—(INS)—President Roosevelt, in a direct personal request asked Senator William Gibbs McAdoo (D) to run for re-election, it was announced today by McAdoo campaign headquarters for northern California.

In a letter on White House stationery dated March 16, the president urged the veteran senator to reconsider his earlier decision to retire to private life.

Release of the letter by campaign headquarters was in response to challenges made by supporters of other senatorial candidates to frequent expressions of McAdoo adherents that "the president wants McAdoo in the senate."

BUILDING PLAN FOR SCHOOLS SET IN MOTION

Board Presents Specifications for Three New Buildings to Architects.

ASKS DRAFTS IN 10 DAYS

Plans Needed Before Schools Can File Application for Share in PWA Funds.

Laying the groundwork for their proposed $1,000,000 school building program, members of the Mansfield board of education last night presented their specifications for three new buildings to four architects who agreed to draft preliminary plans and submit them to the board within 10 days.

The plans are required before the board can file its application fith the WPA for a share of a new billion-dollar government appropriation.

Must File by Aug. 31.

The board's action co-incided with an announcement by Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes that applications for a share of the new PWA allocation must be filed before Aug. 31.

While no arrangements were made at last night's meeting for employing architects, the board suggested that Vernon Redding Associates draft plans for a new John Simpson junior high building and Althouse-Jones prepare preliminary drafts for a new junior high school at Cline avenue and Wood streets.

Specifications for a one-story shop building at Senior high school were outlined to Charles Conklin and H. J. Brumenshenkel, who were invited to draft plans for the building

Capacity of 1,000 Each.

Supt. W. L. Miller who proposed the building program, told the architects that the two junior high school buildings must have a capacity of 1,000 pupils each, must include an auditorium and gymnasium at opposite sides of the buildings, cafeterias with 250 to 300 capacity, and modern equipment throughout. Both buildings would be two-story structures, according to present plans.

Cost of the buildings would be paid by a federal grant for approximately $450,000 and a bond issue for the remainder.

It was pointed out at last night's session that Mansfield may have a better chance to obtain a grant under the new federal allocation because of the few WPA and PWA projects in the county and the large number of men eligible for work on relief projects.

The school board's request will be submitted to state and national PWA officials through the state department of education.

Recommendations for a building program and modernizing of the city's elementary schools were included in a report submitted to the board of education last week by Dr. T. C. Holy of Ohio State university after he had completed a survey of school buildings here.

EMBARRASSING

Old Fire-Engine Beats New One To Blaze Scene.

POINT PLEASANT, W. Va — (AP)—The red on the new fire truck here appeared a bit deeper today.

Just as Mayor George Skeen paraded the shiny truck to a wharf for a public showing, the fire siren cut loose.

Back up the hill raced the mayor and truck—only to find the old fire engine had got there first and extinguished the blaze.

Council Gives First Reading To Gas Rate Measure Friday

Council will meet in special session tomorrow night, on call of Mayor Claude M. Hunter, to give a first reading to a new gas rate ordinance, continuing the rates set up in the present ordinance, which expires May 15.

Meanwhile, Councilman Russell D. Porch, chairman of council's utilities committee, was attempting to arrange a meeting with W. C. Mead, Mansfield division manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas company, seeking his approval of the renewal of the present rate.

Mead, however, was in Columbus today, where he was said to be conferring with his superiors, and Porch was uncertain when a meeting might be arranged.

Regardless of the company's attitude, council will consider a gas ordinance embodying the present rates tomorrow night.

At a meeting as a committee of the whole Wednesday, council came to agreement on that question. It stood firmly against the proposal submitted by the gas company which would have increased the monthly bill of a 5,000-foot consumer 45 cents, but gave little consideration to the committee's proposal which would have reduced rates slightly.

Have You Seen This Child?

An army of more than 1,000 men gathered today for a final search of the dense woods near Bradford, Pa., for missing four-year-old Marjory West, above, who disappeared there Sunday while picking violets. The call for the army of searchers for a final "elbow to elbow" hike through the densely underbrushed woods was issued last night by Mayor Hugh J. Ryan.

Birds Break Ice In Bath, Mercury Hits Record 27

Sub-Freezing Temperature Sets All-Time Mark; Frost Hits Flowers, Vegetables; Warmer Saturday.

If you see a flock of birds going around with pained expressions on their faces today, you can blame it on the weather.

You can't blame the birds—who wouldn't have a pained expression if he'd had to break a quarter inch of ice in order to indulge in his morning bath? And in the middle of May, to boot!

But that's exactly what happened in Mansfield this morning, the coldest May 12 on record. The mercury, said Observer Otto Sprunger, went down to 27, five degrees below freezing. The next coldest May 12 was in 1925, when 28 was recorded.

If you can hold out until Saturday, it may be warmer. The forecast said "fair and continued 'cool' tonight and Friday. Warmer Saturday."

Frost which accompanied last night's cold was costly to county farmers. Extensive damage was reported to strawberries, vegetables and flowers. Apple trees were also believed to have suffered, although it was a little early to estimate that.

At Wooster it was 26, even colder than in Mansfield, and it was reported that wheat in addition to vegetable crops had been damaged.

Fruit crops in northeastern Ohio also were reported to have suffered extensive damage from frost last night.

House Seeks to Pass Lending-Spending Program Today.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— House leaders launched a drive for passage of President Roosevelt's relief-recovery bill before adjournment today and prepared to hold a night session, if necessary, to obtain approval of the huge lending-spending program.

The leadership plan was announced by House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn in the face of a slashing Republican attack on major provisions of the $3,054,425,000 recovery bill.

Rep. Everett M. Dirksen, R., Ill., began the attack on the bill, challenging a provision designed to enable debt-ridden states and cities to obtain public works projects despite statutory limitations.

KISS RINGS BELL

And It's Blond, Not Redhead, Who Scores Highest in Test.

CHICAGO — (AP) — There was blushing aplently at the Armour Institute of Technology when blonds, brunets and redheads tested the kiss-o-meter, a device for measuring the "voltage" of osculation.

A a petite blond, who stood on tiptoes to reach the lips of her tall young beau, broke away and rushed from the room when the needle hit a high 12 and rang a bell. Two matrons kissed in the interest of science. The needle registered a cool four.

Kallmerten Boom on For State Dem Chairmanship

Mansfielder Favored By Davey as Successor to Poulson.

HINGES ON PRIMARY

Richland Chairman Sees Davey Saturday, Will Run If Asked.

Gov. Martin L. Davey would like to have E. B. Kallmerten as chairman of the state Democratic executive committee, International News Service dispatches from Columbus to The News-Journal said today.

In Mansfield, Kallmerten, now chairman of the Richland county Democratic executive committee, said "if the governor wants me to accept, I probably will take the job."

Whether Kallmerten would be offered the job would depend on the outcome of the August primary, in which Davey seeks renomination, with Charles Sawyer, Cincinnati, as his opponent.

Invited to Lunch With Davey.

Kallmerten revealed that he had received an invitation from Davey to have lunch with him at the executive mansion Saturday.

"I have no idea what he has in mind and there was nothing in his letter to indicate what he wants," Kallmerten said.

He added, however, that several party leaders in the county and district had "mentioned" the position to him, although he had not talked to the governor about it.

"I'm not seeking the post," Kallmerten said.

Developments which have brought Gov. Davey and his supporters to look with favor on Kallmerten as the most likely candidate to succeed Francis B. Poulson as party leader were outlined in the International News Service dispatch.

Poulson Ready to Retire.

The dispatch said it had been learned in Columbus that Poulson would not be a candidate for re-election to the party helm after the primaries, should Davey win over Sawyer. Poulson, according to capital authorities, has been on his way out since Davey's victory in 1936, and planned to retire last year to his private law practice, but was dissuaded, the article said.

RAILMEN GIVEN PAY CUT NOTICE

Wages for 1,000,000 Workers Drop 15 Per Cent July 1; Brotherhoods Protest.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — American railroads today formally notified railway labor that they will reduce basic wages 15 per cent on July 1.

The wage cuts, which rail labor leaders have announced they will resist, would affect an estimated 1,000,000 workers.

The action was announced by the carriers' joint conference committee, representing the entire railroad industry.

"This action is compelled by conditions now confronting the railroad industry," a statement by the committee said. "We wish the public and railroad employes to know what those conditions are, because both the national welfare and welfare of railroad men are necessarily dependent upon the welfare of the basic transportation industry of the country."

The action of the carriers, calculated to save $250,000,000 annually, invokes the machinery of a lengthy arbitration and mediation system provided by the railway labor act. That statute provides for conferences between management and labor in an attempt to reach an agreement. Resistance by rail labor would delay final decision on the reduction far beyond July 1.

George M. Harrison, president of the railway labor executives' committee, has been emphatic in his statements that labor will refuse to accept any wage reductions.

BROTHERHOODS PROTEST

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Decision of the railroads to reduce wages 15 per cent on July 1 was branded today as "a fatal step" by A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, largest of the railway labor groups.

Town Banishes 'Witch' Blamed In Death of Ex-Police Chief

(By International News Service)

RICHMOND, Ind.—Branded a witch by her frightened neighbors, a 60-year-old Indian woman was banished from this Hoosier county seat of 25,000 population today.

Although authorities disbelieved the charges, they heeded the demands of a dozen complainants and ordered the woman and her husband to leave the city.

Both said they were glad to go.

The accused woman is Mrs. Irene Ray. She had been held on a vagrancy charge after State's Attorney Murray McCarty told her accusers that Indiana had never passed a statute outlawing witchcraft.

The accuser specifically cited the death of former Police Chief Clay Sheets, and the critical illness of a young girl.

Prosecutor McCarty found out that Chief Sheets died from chronic heart disease and that the girl suffered from leakage of the heart.

Mrs Ray, they said, was expert at mixing the combings from the heads of her victims with cat hairs in a bottle of vinegar. She would bury the concoction at night after which the doomed person would surely wither and die.

She worked her most deadly spells in collaboration with a sorcerer living some twenty miles away who was noted for being able to wreak havoc by chewing up a silver dime and pounding the bits into a board, cursing mightily as he worked.

FIRMLY DENIES HE EMPLOYED WIFE'S KILLER

Attorney Predicts Contractor to Be Released From Jail Before Tonight.

CHECK ON SLIM CLUES

Canton Police to Interview Sister of Mrs. Ludwig in Effort to Solve Case.

(By United Press)

CANTON — Counsel for Dueber S. Cable, 48, Canton contractor who was accused in a suicide letter of hiring his wife's assassin, today pictured the author of the letter, Miss Theresa Ludwig, 46, as "a woman scorned."

Miss Ludwig committed suicide in Conneaut Monday after writing to her attorney that Cable paid Cleveland professional killers $200 to slay Mrs. Rose B. Cable on May 11, 1937.

Offers to Help.

Held for investigation by Canton police for the last two days, Cable stoutly denied the posthumous charges of the divorcee who had been his paramour, and renewed his offer "to help the police in any way that I can" to solve his wife's murder.

William H. Simpson, Cable's attorney, predicted his client would be released from jail before tonight.

"She (Miss Ludwig) had been newly scorned, and you know the old saying: 'Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned'," Simpson said.

Miss Ludwig was revealed to have visited the Cable home here last Sunday night and to have been turned away by A. B. Cable, brother and business partner of Dueber.

Police said today they had found nothing to substantiate the charges contained in the suicide letter.

Police Chief Ira Manderbaugh returned from Steubenville, where he went to interview Mrs. Bertha Mumaw, a friend of Miss Ludwig. He reported he was unable to find Mrs. Mumaw.

Chief Manderbaugh said he understood that Miss Ludwig had lived with Mrs. Mumaw for two months after Mrs. Cable's murder.

Buried Today.

Burial services were to be held today in Conneaut for Miss Ludwig. She had resided there recently with her sister, Mrs. George

By Friday of last year's campaign week, workers had raised $36,456, and Arthur S. Hughes, general chairman of the drive this year, hopes to equal or top that figure tomorrow. The goal in the current campaign is $53,950.

BOY SMOTHERS DYNAMITE FUSE

Police said the building under which the dynamite was found was a combination store-apartment, but declined to give its location. They expressed belief the explosive was intended for another building.

Newest Lipstick Looks Black

Courtesy Saks, Fifth Avenue

Fashions in cosmetics are just as changeable and interesting as fashions in clothes. Women have come a long way in this direction since the days when any woman who painted even a modest flush on her cheeks was considered a hussy. Vivid lipsticks have been the vogue for some time, but heretofore they have not emulated finger nails and taken on all the colors of the rainbow. Recently, however, a cosmetic firm has launched a black lipstick that promises to be very popular. Yes, this lipstick is black as licorice in your fingers—but it goes to a rare red on your lips, so don't worry. Black lips would hardly be alluring we fear. This lipstick made with this change in coloring is practically indelible. It comes in various popular shades, but it always is black in the stick form.

WILL INSTALL.

Members of Delta Theta Tau will install newly elected officers Monday evening at the Mansfield-Leland hotel in the Chinese room. Following the ceremony there will be a social hour with Mrs. Isreal Dillon, Miss Mildred Angle and Miss Melva Graham as hostesses.

MAXIE MIGHT NEED JACOBS' HELP ON NIGHT HE MEETS LOUIS.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK—(INS)—At a time when Max Schmeling was conveniently out of ear-shot and well on his way back to his hotel, where he was in no position to utter a protest even if he was so minded, they picked Step-Manager Joe Jacobs up by the "handles," or ears, down at the boxing commission yesterday and awarded him the bum's escort to the street level. The dope is that he still may be there by June 22, unless he pays his way in at the gate, when Max Schmeling and Joe Louis enact the second episode of their heavyweight championship serial.

Joe Jacobs

Briefly, Jacobs' application for renewal of his manager's license and for reinstatement as a second was not acted upon by the commission. A lot of people think it never will be. That this vociferous gent is out at least semi-permanently, seemingly without a specific reason, leaves the situation open to the following surmise:

Does somebody want Jacobs out of the picture that night? In fact, perhaps several somebodies, even including Schmeling himself. He hasn't wanted Jacobs around since coming here from Germany for the first Louis fight, but had to pay him anyhow. After yesterday, he may not even have to do that. The vested authority in the state of New York has declared that Jacobs is neither a manager nor a second, a rather baffling state of affairs, especially on the morning after the fight when the wages are due

After all, how much can one pay a man for something he isn't? It's all very confusing and the Herr Schmeling may never be able to arrive at a conclusion—but I have a feeling that maybe he'll wish he had.

Something can go wrong that night, and maybe it will—a long count, a short count, the rabbit punch or any of the innumerable controversial points with which this hilarious business abounds.

Up To Feller

He Gets Call Today in Vitt's Attempt to Win Even Break With Yanks.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Bob Feller was to take the mound here today against the world champion New York Yankees in an effort to halt the rapid descent of the Cleveland Indians

Feller, with three victories and one defeat, was to be opposed by "Lefty" Gomez in the concluding game of the Indians' disastrous invasion of the East.

Drops Notch.

Cleveland lost its fifth contest in eight starts during the current trip yesterday when it was beaten by the Yankees 4 to 1. The loss dropped the Tribe into third place.

Mel Harder was in the box for Cleveland and was nicked for 10 hits. The Yankees bunched six of the hits in the first two innings to build up their winning margin.

New York scored twice in the first inning on a home run by Tommy Heinrich, the Massillon youngster who once belonged to the Indians, a single by Bill Dickey and a double by Joe DiMaggio.

Another run was added by the Yanks in the second when Spurgeon Chandler singled, Frank Crosetti doubled and Red Rolfe singled The final counter came in the fifth on a home run by Rolfe.

The Indians nicked Chandler for nine hits, but could not bunch them effectively. Their only run came in the eighth inning on a single by Sammy Hale and Earl Averill's double.

Averill Big Gun.

Averill was the big gun in the Cleveland attack. He secured three hits in four trips to the plate.

Jimmy Webb was at shortstop for the Tribe in place of Lyn Lary. He handled his only two fielding chances with ease, but did not secure a hit in three times at bat.

Pompoon Sets Track Record

BALTIMORE —(U.P.)— Clipping three-fifths of a second off the mile and three-sixteenth track record, Pompoon, champion two-year-old in 1936, won the 34th running of the Dixie handicap at Pimlico yesterday.

The four-year-old bay son of Pompey ran the distance in 1.56 4/5 to win easily under a powerful ride by Georgie Woolf. Busy K., owned by Mrs. P. DeLee Watts, finished second, three lengths behind with Brandywine stable's Masked General third. John A. Manufso's Aneroid finished fourth in the field of 12.

Baseball Situation Uncertain

Mansfield's Future in Ohio League Is Unchanged Despite Reports.

By OSCAR RUHL
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

JUST where does Mansfield stand in the Ohio State league picture?

That question is being asked daily in Mansfield, but there is no answer to solve the mystery, especially not in these precincts.

All's O. K.—Smith.

President Harry Smith contends he has assurance that the city will retain its berth in the Class D league and baseball operators in the circuit cities have been led to believe that Mansfield is certain to be in the field again this year, but none of the parties connected with the operation of the club here last summer seem to know what it is all about.

If arrangements are actually being completed to keep Mansfield in the circuit, they are being fashioned without the knowledge of any Mansfield citizens.

In a telephone conversation several days ago, Smith told the writer that the Pittsburgh Pirates will undoubtedly take over the Mansfield franchise forfeited by the Boston Red Sox.

He informed the writer that a representative of the National league club would come to Mansfield immediately to look over the situation.

The conversation took place last week, and no Pirate official has made an appearance yet.

All of these encouraging reports emanating from the presidential office in Columbus about Mansfield just don't seem to make sense as no effort to revive interest locally has been attempted, and, you know, the season opens next week.

From this side of the fence, it appears as though the league is attempting to keep Mansfield warmed up on the possibility of returning to the league until it finds out for certain whether Marion will be back in the field.

Maybe This Is It?

If Marion quits, and the odds that it won't are not very encouraging, Mansfield will be dropped from the picture, leaving the league with four teams. But if Marion decides to sponsor a team, a backer will be sought for Mansfield to complete a six-team circuit.

In view of the unsettled state of affairs, Mansfield can hardly be regarded as a member right now, despite Smith's encouraging words.

So City's Still A Possibility?

FINDLAY — (AP) — President Harry Smith of the Ohio State Baseball league said today that Fostoria and Tiffin were ready for the loop's opening May 18 and that Fremont had received assurance of backing from Brooklyn of the National league. His statement followed a meeting here last night of Ohio league officials, who scheduled another session Sunday at Fremont.

Smith said there still was a strong possibility that Mansfield would obtain Major league backing for loop participation this season.

LARWIN IN ILLINOIS DERBY

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Larwin, 1938 Kentucky derby winner, has been entered in the $12,000 added Illinois derby to be run at Aurora, May 28.

LUCAS TEAM OPEN

The Lucas Independents are seeking softball games. Richard Airhart is the booking agent for the team.

CUMMINGS, MAYS STAGE MATCH RACE SUNDAY

INDIANAPOLIS —(U.P.)— "Wild Bill" Cummings, Indianapolis and Rex Mays, Glendale, Calif., will determine which is the better racing car driver Sunday in an unprecedented match race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. The race was sanctioned yesterday by Speedway officials.

The winner will be decided in the best two out three heats. The first and second will be six laps, or 15 miles. The third, if necessary will be 10 laps, or 25 miles.

Legion Preps For Coshocton

Works Overtime for Game Scheduled There.

Mansfield's representatives in the Central Ohio league will still be gunning for their first victory Sunday when they invade Coshocton.

The Mansfield American Legion club opened its season last Sunday, and bowed to the Columbus entry, 2 to 0, and it faces a job just as tough the coming Sabbath.

Kids In Lineup.

The Coshocton club is built on the order of the Legions, with young players holding down the majority of the berths.

Notable among the veterans on the club are Chappie Geygan, who managed the recent Marion and Sandusky teams in the Ohio State league, and Emory Zumbro, Geygan's teammate with the Columbus A. A. club some years ago.

Geygan, who batted over .380 in the Ohio State league last season, is expected to add considerable punch to the Coshocton lineup.

Manager Dewey Durant is working the Legion club overtime this week to hasten their development into a strong unit.

Durant Pleased.

Durant was pleased with the performance of the youngsters making their bow in semi-pro ball last Sunday, and he believes they will help to make the Mansfield club a formidable pennant contender.

Reserves Swamp Ashland, 72 to 46

Mansfield Registers Nine Firsts In 14 Events to Hang Up One-Sided Track Triumph.

COACH HARRY MEHOCK'S Mansfield high school reserve trackmen boasted another triumph today, and their varsity brothers had the benefit of a good workout under their belts.

The varsity performers accompanied the reserves to Ashland yesterday to put on a couple of exhibitions in preparation for their last dual meet appearance of the season at Akron Garfield Saturday.

Show Supremacy.

Mehock's reservemen won without a great deal of trouble, scoring nine firsts in the 14 events to win by a one-sided 72 to 46 margin at Myers field.

Mansfield dropped only two track events, the gruelling "440" and mile relay. The other Ashland firsts were registered in the high jump, shot put and discus. Glass taking the last two events to become the only dual winner.

Among the outstanding Mansfield performers were Kreps, who took a first in the 220-yard run, ran with the winning 880-yard relay team and finished second in the century.

Other Winners.

Other Mansfield individual winners were Dykstra, 100; Phaler, high hurdles: Bates, mile; Eisele, pole vault, Buzard, low hurdles: Henke, 880, and Atwater, broad jump.

The summary follows:

Meet Capital Team Sunday

Hi-Speeds Seek Third Win Against Red Sox.

It'll be victory No. 3 the Mansfield Hi-Speeds will be seeking Sunday when they tackle the touted Columbus Red Sox at League park.

Whether or not the undefeated Hi-Speeds will be able to accomplish the feat remains to be seen, but if they continue to play the type of ball displayed so far, their chances of victory are good.

Wins 23 in '37.

Columbus will come here with practically the same organization which last season carried it through a successful season of 23 victories and six defeats against some of the top-notch semi-pro clubs in the state.

Petey Beer, Hi-Speeds' twirler, will probably go to the mound in an effort to register his third triumph of the season. He pitched the Mansfielders to victory in both games so far.

Beer will be opposed by either Bill Foley or Chuck Lehman, the star righthanders of the Red Sox. Foley is an erstwhile Aquinas high player, while Lehman is a product of Columbus East.

Notable Players.

Outstanding among the leading Capital City sluggers who will appear here are Wayne Maddix, former University of Kentucky player; Joe Smith, hard-hitting first baseman, and Jack Nolan, ex-pro player.

Maddix will be behind the plate

Melton Beats 'Second Year' Jinx With 6th Straight Win

Stops Cardinals 5 to 3 to Give Wild Running Giants Fifth Victory In Row.

By SID FEDER, Associated Press Sports Writer.

MEET the icicle, folks. He not only has the temperament, he even looks like one, this Cliff Melton, the Giants' sophomore southpaw who's standing National league batters on their ears and giving old-man second year jinx a classy going-over.

He's built on the general proportions of a beanpole, stretching about six-feet-six straight up from his size 12's, and his most distinguishable features are a pair of out-sized ears. But, man, can he pitch.

Win In Ninth.

It took a lot of pitching to whip the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday, but Melton had it and the Giants won out 5-3 for their fifth in a row. Cliff was given a hot fight by Lefty Bob Weiland, but he kept breezing 'em in without lifting an eyebrow, and finally his mates shoved two runs across in the ninth to put the game on ice and drop the Gas House Gang into seventh place.

Since the Washington Senators were having their seven-game streak ruined, 4-1, by Vernon Kennedy and the rest of the Detroit Tigers, the Yanks pulled out in front by a few percentage points by beating Cleveland, 4 to 1, and the Nats dropped to second.

Lefty Grove made it five in a row and tossed the Boston Red Sox to a 4-2 decision over Jimmy Dykes' limping White Sox, thereby boosting Tom Yawkey's millionaires into a third-place deadlock with Cleveland.

The Cubs came apart with a bang as Van Lingle Mungo got back to the wars with his fireball, a neat curve and control, and won his first game of the year, 7-0, for the Dodgers over Cholly Grimm's gallopers, raising the Brooklyns to sixth place.

Pull Triple Play.

The St. Louis Browns, buried in the American league cellar, made a triple play and went on to a 9-5 win over Connie Mack's fumbling Athletics, who made only five errors.

The Boston Bees-Cincinnati Reds and Phillies-Pittsburgh Pirates games lost out to old man cold weather.

Dine Tonight In Crestline

Championship awards will be presented at the annual Commercial B league bowling banquet to be held at the Fry Bros., restaurant in Crestline at 7 p. m. today.

The team championship of the league was won by the W. F. Untiet Insurance club, which finished two games in front of the Mansfield Printers with a 73 victories against 26 defeats. The Q Billiards finished third, although they compiled the best game average of 897 pins.

Figures released by Secretary Roy Vaughn reveal that Cliff Forsythe of the Q Billiards won the individual average championship with a mark of 190.12.

Eddie Meder and Harold Lemunyon of the Willis Billiards compiled averages of 186.30 and 185.14, respectively. Funston of the insurance club finished fourth with a 184.91 average.

The high team total rolled during the recent season was a 3045 shot by the Printers. The Yuncker Sports accounted for the high single game of 1080.

And if this official bowser stays on Jacobs until after the fight, Schmeling might find himself without that shrill, strident sound, known as the "beef," just at a time when he'll need it most.

Schmeling can't protect himself vocally. Neither can his chief-second, Max Machon. They're a couple of Weber and Fields dialecticians. They'll probably have "Doc" Casey in there with them and the doctor has never been known for his swift, glib patter in an emergency and, in fact, if he ever was prepared to make a stand on anything, it probably had something to do with the assertion that John L. Sullivan was once a prize fighter. "Doc" Casey is quite a man with cuts and abrasions. But once you leave the corner, his job leaves with you.

What a fighter needs in a tough spot is a "holler guy," who'll bleat so piteously that the ears of officials fairly resound to the clamor and ringsiders are moved to suggested violence unless the holler guy gets what he deserves. Of course, if he got what he deserved, they'd take him to the town limits and show him the landscape but, by the time everybody finds that out, the holler guy's guy has won the point and sometimes even the fight itself.

• • •

Into Title. Hollered Max

IT SEEMS appropriate enough to state at this point that Jacobs once hollered Schmeling into the heavyweight championship, at a time when Schmeling was supporting himself mostly on his haircut, asserting that he was the victim of a dastardly foul by Sharkey. Two of the officials, including the referee, didn't see the punch but, before Jacobs got through with them, he even had them feeling it. I can recall, too, some of his extra-curricular activities before the Stribling fight in Cleveland, but perhaps I shouldn't.

In fact there's no doubt of it. He also was a noteworthy holler guy in Louis' dressing room before the Schmeling massacre, to the point where Louis wound up hours later with more bandages on his troubled visage than he had on his hands.

I might add, and in fact will, that the last non-English-speaking heavyweight-challenger who went in there without a holler guy was Luis Angel Firpo.

SENATE CLEARS DECKS TO ACT ON NAVY BILL

$1,549,000,000 Measure Gets Final Consideration Today; Approval Foreseen.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Decks were cleared in the senate today for final passage of the $1,549,000,000 bill to restore America's might upon the seas and give this nation a navy second to none.

Senator Walsh (D) of Massachusetts, will call up the senate-house conference report on the measure. With senate approval, considered certain, the bill will go to President Roosevelt for his signature. The house approved the report yesterday.

As this measure simply provides for a "blueprint" navy, being merely an "authorization" for warships and warplanes, the next step will be recommendations from President Roosevelt to provide funds to start the building during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

It is the plan of the administration to spread the construction over a period of years, from five to ten years. While a ten-year schedule would call for an average annual outlay of about $150,000,000, congressional leaders expect the president to recommend about $75,000,000 for the first year.

Calls For 46 Ships.

The bill provides for 46 new combatant vessels, estimated to cost $811,095,000; 26 auxiliary ships, $216,451,000; 950 airplanes to make a total of 3,000, $106,000,000; additional equipment for navy yards, $8,000,000; for small surface speed-boats, $15,000,000 and $3,000,000 for a dirigible of 3,000,000 cubic feet in size.

Also authorized are three 35,000-ton battleships, but if the president deems 45,000-tonners advisable, he may order dreadnaughts of that displacement and costing approximately $100,000,000 each.

Construction of the dirigible also is left to the discretion of the president.

The Walsh-Healey act governing maximum working hours and minimum pay for employes of companies having government contracts, is made applicable to private shipbuilders building navy warships.

The president is given discretionary authority to waive application of that law when he believes that course necessary in the interest of national defense.

Two aircraft carirers of 20,000 tons each, are authorized in the bill. Other first-line warships authorized in this measure to put the American navy on an equal basis with Great Britain's fleet and and a 5-3 ratio with Japan, are nine light cruisers, 23 destroyers and nine submarines.

The 26 auxiliary vessels would be divided: three destroyer tenders, two submarine tenders, three large seaplane tenders, seven small seaplane tenders, one repair ship, four oil tankers, one mine layer, three mine sweepers and two fleet tugs.

ONE WORKER TO LOSE CITY JOB

Garbage Department Employe Lacks Year's Residence in City, Ordered Removed.

Acting on an order issued by the civil service commission several weeks ago on the question of city employes one year priority residence Mayor Claude M. Hunter today called for the removal of one employe from the payroll.

Mayor Hunter said he had ordered the removal of Vernon Dearth, 130 Lida street, effective Saturday, after it had been found he had not lived in the city one year prior to his appointment.

Dearth, who had lived in the county had moved into the city last September, the mayor said. He was appointed to the job of helper on an ash truck in the garbage department early in January by Hunter.

Hunter announced the appointment of Frank Apple, 326 Third avenue, a former Westinghouse employe to fill the position left vacant by Dearth. Apple will take over his duties Monday.

U. S. Sailors on Duty While Japs Capture Seaport.

SHANGHAI —(AP)— American bluejackets from the gunboat Asheville today patrolled the small international settlement on Kulangsu island, off the south China coast, as thousands of refugees and soldiers poured in after Japanese naval forces captured nearby Amoy.

The Japanese reported complete occupation of Amoy island, including the city of Amoy, important port 600 miles south of Shanghai.

At the same time the Japanese reported new gains on the Shantung front, where fully a dozen columns were moving steadily toward the Lunghai railway against "stubborn" resistance.

On the left wing of this 65-mile front, the Japanese asserted they had occupied Langtzehu, south of Tancheng and only three miles from the Lunghai, and said the Chinese were in "full flight."

ANDERSON MOVES TO CUT COST OF CRIPPLED CHILDREN'S CARE

A move to provide more rigid investigation of crippled children's cases in Richland county and reduce the cost of caring for the patients was started yesterday by Probate Judge C. J. Anderson who named a committee of six county officials and employes to check applications submitted to probate court.

Judge Anderson said the county is spending nearly $10,000 a year for the care of crippled children's cases, and added that the cost could be reduced if more co-operation is obtained from parents of the afflicted children.

Members of the committee, Judge Anderson said, will visit the homes of applicants to determine if parents are able financially to provide the necessary hospitalization for the patients. Seven children in the county are now receiving care.

"In many cases," he said, "we find that the county pays all the bills when parents are able to contribute to the treatment of their handicapped children."

Cases approved by Judge Anderson are referred to the state hospital for crippled children at Elyria where operations are performed or recommendations made for home treatment. Transportation to and from the hospital is provided from a fund set up by the Mansfield and Shelby Rotary clubs for the care of crippled children. W. C. Mead is in charge of the Mansfield club's activities.

Members of Judge Anderson's committee are Mrs. Harry Downs, matron at the county children's home; County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe, Miss Esther Barnett and Ralph Carroll, county juvenile officers; Miss Mildred Armstrong, county supervisor for the department of aid to dependent children, and a representative from the board of county commissioners.

Installation of officers and presentation of tenderfoot badges were made by Floyd Dent, area scout executive.

Helpful hubby discovers new quick way to do dishes!

MANY A he-man proudly admits he helps his wife with the dishes. And why not? It's often fun. And with the New improved Rinso to help it's downright easy. The smiling husband above is saying, "Look, dear, while you were feeding the baby I did the dishes. That Rinso sure is great stuff!"

The New Rinso IS marvelous for dishwashing. Cup for cup, it gives over 25% more suds than the old. These richer, livelier suds soak off grease—in an amazingly short time. Then all you have to do is to rinse and, if you wish let the dishes drain dry. Dishes, pots and pans come sparkling clean without a trace of greasy film on them. This new way to wash dishes is quicker and easier. Try it—and see for yourself. The New Rinso—America's biggest-selling package soap—is kind as ever to the hands. Economical; a little goes a long way. Get the BIG household package.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

WHEN evening comes, we light the old oil lamp. Of course it does not give a brilliant light, but when trimmed properly it makes a fine white glow that is always steady and reliable. And to eyes overtured from incandescent glare, it gives a sense of peace and comfort.

Sometimes when soot and grease have closed the small holes about the burner, it is common practice to boil them in a kettle of lye. As a lad, I remember well how clean and prim it looked, when drawn from the greasy, sooty stew. This process renewed our lamp for the entire year.

Many of our neighbors here still use these lights. I see them shine from their windows. It gives me a tender, homey feeling to see that mellow light cast its beams across the rural landscape. For I know then that the evening chores are done—the cows are milked and stabled in the straw sheds, the horses fed and bedded with fresh straw from the stack, the chicken house closed against prowling animals, and the farmer and his family sit happily about the table reading farm magazines or the daily paper, while the children do their lessons for the next day at the rural school.

This was the lamp by which Andrew Carnegie sat and burned the midnight oil—planning his way to wealth and fame. By this same light Longfellow, Whittier, and Bryant wrote their immortal poems—Lincoln fed his eager mind and thirsty soul.

In my childhood home this light shone from one side of the house against the wooded mountainside on the other, out across the fertile valley. It always stood near the center of the table. By this my mother sat on her rocking chair, knitting woolen stockings or mending clothes. My father, close by, laid the well worn Bible on his knee and read in an almost audible whisper, the selections he loved the best.

"How far that little candle throws its beams . . ."

SUSPECT NAMED IN OLD SLAYING

Fugitive Warrant Filed in Court Accuses Prisoner of Murder 8 Years Ago.

A fugitive warrant charging a 35-year-old colored man with a murder eight years ago in Tennessee, had been filed today in municipal court by Detective Lee J. Remy.

The warrant named Willie Sewell, alias Willie Gaines, alias the "Boll Weevil," of 182 West Sixth street, who is being held at the Mansfield police station without bail, following his identification Tuesday as the slayer of a man in Chattanooga, Tenn., in 1929.

The identification was made by the slain man's brother who came here from Columbus at the request of the police. Remy said the man picked the suspect out of a line-up with four other colored prisoners.

Meanwhile police were awaiting word from the authorities of Hamilton county, Tenn., for extradition papers that would take the suspect back to Chattanooga for trial.

The suspect who has lived in Mansfield for the past two years following his marriage was picked up by detectives several days ago.

HEAD ENGINEERS

Two Mansfielders Elected by Central Ohio Association.

Charles W. Conklin and Carl Schmahl, Mansfield engineers, today had been elected president and secretary, respectively, of the Northcentral Ohio Professional Engineers' association.

I. R. Ault, Ashland, district highway engineer, was chosen vice president, and K. A. Poister, of Bucyrus was elected treasurer at the group's annual meeting at Ashland.

The Mansfield men succeed L. G. Shenberger, president, and E. M. Kerr, secretary, both of Ashland.

E. M. Whitehead of the General Electric company was the principal speaker at the Ashland session. He discussed the possibilities of roadside lighting projects.

THEATER

Hardys Are Popular.

The Judge Hardy pictures were launched as just another program series, a few steps ahead of "quickies," but they have become so popular that they now are shown at class A theaters and click at the box office. Their appeal lies in the fact that the characters are every day folks and the things that happen to them might happen to any ordinary, sane American family. "Judge Hardy's Children," the third of the series, opens a three-day engagement today at the Ohio. Each story is complete in itself, although they all revolve around the same set of characters, with a few new ones each time. The current picture has them in Washington where the children complicate things for their father. Lewis Stone, Fay Holden, Cecilia Parker and Mickey Rooney have the major characters.

What's in a Name?

Olympe Bradna, the 17-year-old French cinema star, is in a dither about the way Americans pronounce her name. It is really her name and she wants to keep it, but her studio gets chills when it hears her called O-Limppy or O-Limp. The easiest way to say it, as she recently explained over the radio is to just say "O-Lamp," which comes somewhere near being correct. She got her name from the Olympic theater in Paris where her parents were performing at the time of her birth. Olympe was really born back stage. She hopes to remain in American films. She is currently co-starred with Gene Raymond in "Stolen Heaven," and is at the Madison. It's the story of love that brings regeneration to two young people, and overcomes the indiscretions of their past.

Exposes Mysticism.

An expose of so-called mystic cults and hypnotism, an exciting assignment of a newspaper reporter and a feature writer, make up the essentials in the plot of "The Women Men Marry," opening tomorrow at the Ritz, with George Murphy, Josephine Hutchinson, Claire Dodd, Sidney Blackmer and Cliff Edwards. An ace reporter and a girl on the same paper set out to unmask Brother Nameless who is fleecing hundreds of poor people with his mystic tricks, and an exciting bit of action follows. "The Singing Outlaw" brings Bob Baker to the Ritz screen on the same program.

Exciting Week-End.

An exciting week-end in which two clever jewel thieves are invited to a country home by the police commissioner in the belief that they will attempt to steal some valuable diamonds which are "planted" at the home, is the theme around which "Double Danger" moves. The picture is one of two which make up the new bill at the Majestic for the last two days of the week. Preston Foster is a writer of detective stories and a friend of the police commissioner, and is also one of the jewel thieves. Whitney Bourne, a newcomer in pictures, is the other thief, and poses as a society girl. The other picture is a western, "Stars Over Arizona," with Jack Randall.

WATCH TEXTILE INDUSTRY FOR RECOVERY SIGN

Observers Encouraged by Recent Flare-up in Cotton Goods Transactions.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Attempts to extend the advance met with some resistance in today's stock market and early trends were slightly mixed.

Oils, ailing in the preceding session, did better as Texas and Oklahome took steps to cut production of crude.

Utilities were buoyed by further hopes the get-together move of the power companies and the government would attain momentum.

Bonds again exhibited forward tendencies. Commodities were uneven.

Market observers watching the textile field for signs of industrial recovery were encouraged by the recent flare-up in cotton goods transactions.

From Washington came the announcement by the Works Progress administration of an increase of 40,000,000 yards in the amount of textiles to be used in relief sewing projects throughout the counry, bringing the organization's purchase program for such goods to an aggregate of 75,000,000 yards.

Not so pleasing were the bank clearings figures for the week ended yesterday. These disclosed a drop from the 1937 comparable period for the 26th consecutive week.

DELAYS ACTION

State Board to Consider Seidel's Case Further.

SHELBY — Definite action on the complaint filed by the Ohio Fire Chiefs' association in behalf of George Seidel, ousted chief of the Shelby fire department, was delayed at a conference at which the case was reviewed by members of the state and Shelby civil service commissions at city hall yesterday.

Further consideration will be given the ouster by the state commission, Mayor D. B. Young stated today. Carl W. Smith, state chairman, attended the conference.

The complaint sought the reinstatement of Seidel, dismissed last summer because he was off duty without a leave of absence, on the grounds that he was not given proper notice of discharge. The complaint stated Seidel was notified of his dismissal by mail instead of in person in accordance with law.

Seidel and representatives of the association attended the conference.

Contrary to Current Rumors

We are still servicing DeSoto and Plymouth automobiles and there has been no change in the personnel of the service department from the old company of Light & McElroy. Mr. Dale Miller who has satisfied hundreds of DeSoto and Plymouth owners is still in charge of service, ably assisted by Mr. Phil Chamberlain.
We still have a complete stock of DeSoto and Plymouth parts and will be glad to see our many old friends back for service as in the past.

COUNTY SPEEDS WPA PROJECTS

$686,000 Road and Ditch Plan Would Provide Work for 750 on Relief Rolls.

tion. The peak here was 700 workers in 1935.

Richland and Knox counties are the only ones in the Sixth Ohio district which have less workers on projects than are eligible for WPA jobs. The district comprises 20 counties.

A parks rehabilitation project in Mansfield is expected to furnish jobs for 80 men about Sept. 1. The project, totaling $25,000, is awaiting the sale of $6,000 in bonds, the city's share.

Six persons employed at transcribing records at the city building will be laid off May 21, Weller said, unless district WPA approval is received on another similar project. In the event of renewed approval, 20 men and women would get work.

In a letter to the Mansfield housing committee, Mayor C. M. Hunter today urged the establishment of a metropolitan housing authority for speedier action on a slum clearance project here which would provide work for a large number of men. The letter will be forwarded to federal housing authorities.

VETS ELIGIBLE

CCC Enrollment of Jobless Ex-Soldiers Begins.

Unemployed Spanish-American and World war veterans may apply for enrollment in the Civilian Conservation Corps at Red Cross headquarters, Mrs. Gertrude B. English, secretary, announced today.

Applications taken now will be for the July enrollment. Mrs. English pointed out that it is not necessary for a veteran to be on relief to enroll. He must however, have an honorable discharge and men with criminal records are barred.

Besides room and board and clothing, veterans are paid $30 a month; $8 to themselves and $23 to their dependents and if there are no dependents, the $23 is saved until the end of their enlistment, when it is paid in a lump sum.

Mrs. English said that 134 war veterans have applied for the CCC through her office since the corps was opened to veterans.

ROCK PUT BACK IN SOIL

FISHKILL, N. Y.—(LP)—By grinding slabs of rock from a stonewall on his property, A. M. Polhemus, Cedar Hill road farmer, expects to fertilize his fields for spring planting. The wall, erected by an earlier settler, is made of limestone, specimens of which test 98½ per cent pure.

Seeks Re-election

Carl V. Weygandt, (above), chief justice of the Ohio Supreme court, announced today in Columbus that he would be a candidate for re-election. Judge Weygandt was elected chief justice four years ago, and prior to that served as a member of the court of appeals of the eighth appellate district. For six years he was judge of the common pleas court of Cuyahoga county.

HOLC HAS LOSS

$2,000,000 Deficit on Homes Returned by Defaults.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The government has lost about $2,000,000 as a result of taking over more than 80,000 homes under its emergency home loan program, John H. Fahey, chairman of the Home Loan Bank board, told a senate subcommittee.

The $2,000,000 loss, he said, included interest, as well as back payments, taxes and foreclosure costs. There were 70,000 foreclosures and 12,000 homes surrendered voluntarily.

Fahey estimated that 250,000 Home Owners Loan corporation borrowers had been delinquent at times but said most of these were repaying the delinquencies along with regular mortgage payments.

Invisible U. S. Air Fighter

By camouflaging these U. S. army air corps planes, the fighting craft become almost invisible at a short distance. The planes are shown at Hartford, Conn., and are among those that participate in eastern air maneuvers. Maj. Emil C. Kiel, squadron commander of the 95th attack group, is showing Brig. Gen. Frank Martin the camouflaging.

MAPS TRIAL

Prosecutor Seeking Quick Justice for Bolinger.

TOLEDO—(AP)—Plans for an early trial of James Bolinger of Fremont, former Ohio State securities commission examiner, are being made by Thomas J. O'Connor, county prosecutor, in an effort to clean up the cases involved in the failure of the Toledo Guaranty Corp.

The Bolinger trial may get under way within the next month.

Bolinger is charged with soliciting a $3,000 bribe in connection with the qualification of the Toledo Guaranty Corp. stock issue which was approved by the state.

Attorneys for the five officials of the corporation who were convicted of fraud and issuing fraudulent checks have prepared motions for a new trial.

It's Odd

But It's Science.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va.—Thomas Jefferson was like most everyone else in one respect—he thought the climate was changing.

"Both heat and cold," he wrote, "are becoming more moderate within the memory of the middle-aged and snows are less frequent and less deep."

Jefferson was a weather observer. There were few others. Today, in the area he observed, there are four U. S. stations, with some of the longest records in this country. They are Richmond, Charlottesville, Lexington, and Lynchburg.

What they show about changing climates is reported by Dr. S. A. Mitchell, astronomer, director of the Leander McCormick observatory, University of Virginia, and observer here on almost the same spot where Jefferson kept records.

For the last 30 years here, the climate has been getting warmer, just as Jefferson said. A similar warm change occurred in Lynchburg.

But before that, Lynchburg had about 30 years in which the climate grew colder. There are no Charlottesville records for the previous cycle.

Rainfall records go back farther. These show, in Lynchburg, considerably drier climate in the past third of a century than for the previous third. Lexington showed a similar though slighter change. Charlottesville and Richmond had no such dry spell.

Churches Lose Share In Estate By Court Ruling

Bequests to the Mansfield Salvation Army, the First M. E. church at Galion and the Methodist Foreign Missions and Board of Home Missions from the estate of the late Jacob Flowers of Sandusky township were void today as the result of the Ohio Supreme court's action in upholding the rights of heirs to the estate.

Mr Flowers, who died in 1918, left his estate, valued at about $30,000, to his widow and specified that after her death it be set up as a perpetual trust for the benefit of the Methodist units and the Salvation Army.

When Mrs. Flowers died five years ago, more than a score of heirs contested the will and sought to share in the estate. They won their case in Richland county probate and common pleas courts and it was later appealed by the beneficiaries.

Each of the religious organizations was to have shared equally in the income from the estate. Edward Metcalf of Galion is trustee.

ACID FEET?

Feet That Sweat, Burn and Give Off Offensive Odors

Tonight do this—give your tired aching feet a good hot foot bath using a good soap; rinse and dry thoroughly. Next pour about a teaspoonful of Moone's Emerald Oil into the palm of your hand and rub thoroughly over the feet, rubbing well into the soles—repeat the rubbing in the morning. This brings relief and quickly, too. That tired aching burning soreness goes and you go about your work again happy and comfortable

Moone's Emerald Oil does not stain—is economical and sold satisfaction guaranteed or money back. Any progressive drug store will be glad to supply you.

Constipated? You Should Get at the Cause!

Lots of people think they can't be "regular" without frequent trips to the medicine chest. "I just dose up and get it over," they tell you. But doctors know they don't "get it over" at all—until they get at the cause of the trouble!

Chances are it's simple to find the cause if you eat only what most people do—meat, bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If that fits you, your ticket is a crunchy breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the great intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and just watch the old world grow brighter! Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

TRACES HISTORY

Sound Movie to Be Shown in 4 Lutheran Churches Sunday.

A sound motion picture, "Thunder of the Sea," tracing the history of Christianity, will be shown in four Mansfield Lutheran churches Sunday evening.

Produced by the United Lutheran Church in America, the picture is being shown throughout the nation. It depicts the world's need for religion and the task facing the church and shows brief scenes from the history of Christianity, Martin Luther's revolt, and leads up to the formation of the United Lutheran church in 1918.

The sweep of American civilization westward, followed by missionaries of the church, is shown, together with work of foreign missions. The films climax is the reproduction of the actual building and dedicating of a small Lutheran church in a new community through the assistance of the American board.

The picture will be presented at 7:30 p. m. Sunday at First Lutheran, St. Luke's, St. Paul and St. Mark's churches.

THURSDAY, MAY 12, 1938.

A thrift plan, to be really effective, must go further than mere daylight-saving.

Interesting subjects for discussion are the well-to-do citizens who refuse to subscribe to the community fund.

A biochemist in the University of Minnesota says thinking requires no energy—which may serve to popularize the pastime.

General Hospital Twenty Years Old.

TODAY is National Hospital day, marking annual observance of the birthday anniversary of Florence Nightingale, founder of the nursing profession.

As some Mansfield people visit General hospital this afternoon and evening they will recall that it is just twenty years ago this month that this institution was first opened for public inspection, in advance of receiving patients.

They will have vividly in mind, also, the pride with which the several thousand visitors to the hospital on that occasion viewed their accomplishment—the realization of an ambition to provide this community with modern hospital facilities which until then had been lacking.

Successful culmination of the hospital project, with surprisingly ready response to the call for voluntary subscriptions of money with which to buy land and build the hospital, was one of the early evidences of civic spirit, and the willingness of Mansfield people to co-operate in projects intended for community advancement.

Indicative, too, of the extent of interest in the new hospital was the time given by women's clubs and various groups, to sewing and preparing supplies of various kinds for the hospital.

Mansfield General hospital, during the twenty years since its completion, has performed valuable service for thousands of people in this city and vicinity. It goes without saying that such an institution must at all times be kept up to high standards of efficiency in order that it may continue to meet the responsibilities of an enlarging field of usefulness.

Take Parks Out of Politics.

HOWEVER it is to be done, there should be no hesitancy in taking such action as is necessary to get Mansfield parks out of politics, and to place the park maintenance and beautification program in the hands of a qualified and interested non-partisan commission.

Present-day Mansfielders are beneficiaries of the foresight of earlier residents who realized the need for reserving tracts of land suitable for park purposes and their appreciation of this foresight can be shown in no better way than by making these recreational places increasingly attractive with the passing years.

The care and upkeep of public parks requires specialized knowledge not ordinarily possessed by political job-seekers and any constructive program of improvement is handicapped by personnel changes incident to changing administrations.

The next few years can be made to bring about great improvement in Mansfield's park facilities. The first logical step is to remove control of the park system from partisan politics.

Liberal Recovery Program.

OSWALD GARRISON VILLARD, a former editor of The Nation and one of America's most distinguished liberals, has made a number of specific suggestions that he believes this government must follow if the depression is to be ended. Chief among his proposals are: A suspension of "reforms" in order that business may know where it stands and not be continually battered from pillar to post by unstable policies; the establishment of a fixed and definite policy toward the public utilities, so that this great industry may unleash the billions in spending power that have been dammed up because of fear of confiscation and unmeetable government competition; tax revision, and the assurance that thereafter there will be no more tax tinkering so long as the present administration remains in power.

There can be hardly any question of the results of such a program. The doubts that have been so greatly responsible for the slackening of industrial expansion would be largely dispelled. Business and industry would feel a new surge of confidence that would be immediately reflected in re-employment. The investor, driven into financial hiding by well-justified fears of vicious tax policies and a vacillating general policy on the part of government in its relation with business, would reappear with funds for progress.

Mr. Villard's program, in brief, is a recovery program, which calls for a return to fundamentals essential to prosperity in any nation.

Laboratory Plane.

A FLYING LABORATORY, one of the few in existence, is going about the country, seeking weather that regular transport planes avoid, making tests and discovering ways to eliminate dangers.

The laboratory is a standard type transport plane except for the cleared cabin in which instruments and a work bench replace seats for passengers. Some of the things tested on recent flights are a new type of airway marker beacon and a method of eliminating static that is built up on plane surfaces during flight.

An amazing lot of aviation problems have been solved by testing devices for model planes and by mathematics and aeronautical designing indoors. Much, however, can be done only as a result of practice tests and experience in the air.

Mission Damages.

THE JAPANESE government has just received another itemized bill for damages. It is presented by the Southern Methodist church for ruined mission properties in China. Twenty-four buildings of this property are said to be in ashes and the rest damaged to some extent. The estimated loss is close to $500,000.

This is the first official damage claim made by a church missions board. Other denominations are considering similar action.

Here is a call for restitution which the Japanese probably did not expect.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

OUR TOWN" is the play that won the Pulitzer prize this season. It is by Thornton Wilder, who wrote a novel that won a Pulitzer prize in 1928—"The Bridge of San Luis Rey."

If one cannot get to New York to see this play, the play in book form can be bought now.

Here we have America as it was in the 1893-1913 period—but life as it always is. There is something fundamental in every speech in this play—which is performed without scenery, and with a commentator (billed as "The Stage Manager") as the chief character.

Life not only is carried through from the cradle to the grave, but beyond the grave. Death is kinder, contains more hope, than life—in this play.

It is tonic for a depression.

* * *

WORK!

But what can be the cure for the depression? What will bring the most joy to men? Work!

And not relief work.

One hears a thousand tales of woe. One wonders what can be done. One suffers intensely if he is a sensitive person upon seeing the suffering of others.

In the meantime, there is a shortage of relief funds, or manipulation of funds by local or state politicians. The sufferers do not know from day to day or week to week whether or not they will have enough to eat, or shelter, or fuel.

That is a horror of which no one can make light.

* * *

STARTING THE WHEELS

People with some money hoard it, fearful for themselves. Nine-tenths of America must be fearful for itself.

Yet if that fear becomes too extensive, every wheel will stop. Everything in a country like the United States depends upon the middle class of people.

Persons with more than $10,000 must take a chance in the purchase of necessities, in replacements, in normal living. If this, alone, were instigated, work could be provided for millions.

It is not the fear of the capitalist that stops wheels, but fear of the middle class. And the middle class fears it will be pushed down into the relief category if it spends a penny more than for bare necessities.

It desires security, as far as possible Security to the wage earner and the salaried man requires social and economic reforms which larger interests have fought. Yet, without these reforms, fear will remain, and wheels will not turn.

Interview people, as this writer has, and you will find this to be the sum and substance of the problem.

LA FOLLETTE

The La Follette third party movement seems to have begun at a slower pace than had been expected.

Democrats are less alarmed Republicans, however, may be more alarmed. Most of the interest shown, outside of Wisconsin, has been in Republican states.

Interest will be high in Republican as well as New Deal primary tests Progressive Republicans may win one or two contests.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Sunday, May 12, 1918.

Mansfield's new General hospital was formally dedicated. It was then a 60-bed hospital and was completed at a total cost of $155,000, including ground, building, furnishings and equipment. Money was provided by public subscriptions.

Mrs. John Staman, 86, died at her home west of Mansfield.

Heavy rains flooded north part of city, with considerable property damage.

Miss Martha Dew, Sturges avenue, was visiting in Huntington, W. Va.

Prof Albert Bellingham, of Pittsburgh, former musical supervisor in public schools, was here for visit.

Mother's day services were held in a number of Mansfield churches.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Friday, May 12, 1933.

Dick Cairns and Mary Elizabeth Fighter had leading roles in the Seth Parker program at St. Mark's Lutheran church.

Mrs Jessie May Lemard, 805 Bowman street, died at her home.

Condition of Mrs Helen Shoenfelt, West Fourth street road, who had been ill four weeks, was improving.

C E Saltzgaber, 50 Willow street, reported to police that his car had been stolen.

William Locke, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Locke, 111 Western avenue, was operated on in Grove City, Pa.

Miss Minnie Martin, Mansfield musician, died at home of brother, W. B Martin, 275 Marion avenue.

TODAY IS—

Thursday, May 12: Hospital day, which you may not have to observe if you remember that this is Peace week.

Should Babies Be Bread Tickets?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

ALL this recent ruckus about Babies being Mama's lawful Bread Tickets—there's something more than mere avarice and selfishness behind it.

Consider, for example, the well-known case of Mother Coogan Bernstein and son Jack's liquidated millions.

"Jackie," the irate lady is reputed to have said, "was never promised anything . . . he hasn't a right to a cent." To which Step-Papa Bernstein promptly echoes —"Every dollar a kid earns before he is 21 belongs to his parents. Jackie will not get a cent of his earnings." And if you don't believe they both mean it, just look 'em over!

Surely this seems an amazing statement from one who presumably wishes to retain her quota of social admiration. Yet, oddly enough, the law, as now written, backs her up in both act and attitude. And, even more oddly, millions of other mothers, seemingly fair and friendly by nature, will applaud those sentiments.

They may admit that Madame C.-B. is perhaps just a teeny-weeny bit too frank in her technique but, nevertheless, they believe as firmly as she does that a child and his wad belong to the mother both by human and divine law. And no matter how much she gets, 'tisn't half enough, poor darling!

So firmly entrenched is this theory in the social consciousness that the one who dares defy it—be he Judge, Editor, Cop, Columnist or plain Papa—might as well go jump in the lake before he's pushed—as it's a cinch he will be—by outraged females armed with tears, tantrums, divorce summons, pickets, subscription cancellations, recall petitions and feminine ballots.

But why should the ladies be so rambunctious on this particular question? Why should they resent any attempt to trample on their "maternal rights" with such Self-Righteous Indignation? For, make no mistake, Mesdames Coogan-Bernstein, Bartholomew, et al, ARE sincere in their wrath and self-pity. They earnestly believe Junior and Sister are Their Dish . . . their rightful reward . . . their heaven-sent compensation! And hands off—or else!'

Whereupon the average male will wring his hands and wail—"Reward . . . compensation . . . but for what?"

FOR BEING A WIFE, BROTHER!

FOR "WASTING THE BEST YEARS OF HER LIFE" AND "WORKING HER FINGERS TO THE BONE" FOR YOU 'N' THE KIDS!

But don't fathers work too? Don't fathers also sacrifice their boyish beauty and Stud Poker to keep the home fires going?

Silly Question No 9,826! Of course they do But t-h-a-t's different. Fathers are men. And it's a man's duty—in fact his privilege—to crawl in under the yoke and start pulling. But Mothers! Mothers are WOMEN. And everyone knows that women suffer 'n' suffer 'n' suffer.

But why the sufferin'? Why's it any harder for a mother to do her share than for a father? Why does she rate all these special honors 'n' haloes 'n' be-yoo-tiful poems any more than he does?

That shows just how much you know, you horrid brute! If you had a heart in you, you'd realize that marriage is just One Long Martyrdom for Women. Why? Never mind why! It just is—that's all! Of course, a Mother usually manages to bear up with a brave smile. But all the time she knows darned well she's been Two-Timed and Double-Crossed and Done Dirt Generally.

SO WHY SHOULDN'T SHE GET A LITTLE COMFORT IF SHE CAN? AND WHY SHOULDN'T HER CHILDREN BE TICKLED PINK TO EARN MILLIONS AND HAND THEM OVER TO HER, DARLING MAMA, TO KEEP FOREVER 'N' EVER?

For—lookit what she's done for them! Yes, indeedy! LOOKIT WHAT SHE'S DONE FOR THEM!

Did I hear someone whisper "racket"? Well, that just goes to prove a woman is never, never, NEVER understood! Not even when they catch her with the brass kunckles on. Can't they see —IT'S ALL FOR BABY'S GOOD?

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Hope Hampton is a sentimental sort of actress. . . . She wears miniatures of all the characters she portrays on her bracelet. . . . Tiny, jeweled little ornaments they are, and expensive. . . . Dangling from her wrist at the moment are replicas of Mimi (La Boheme), Marguerita (Faust), Manon (Manon), and "Madame Butterfly" . . . An interesting point is that Hope designs them herself, and then presents the designs to her jeweler . . . who in turn presents her with the finished article, and the bill.

When you see Jack Dempsey step up to the bar in his restaurant and down a whiskey "neat," don't be misled. . . . It's tea, which a thoughtful bar captain keeps in readiness. . . . Occasionally Jack can't avoid a sociable "drink" with his pals.

JUST found out that Delaware was the first state in the Union And all this time I thought it was Virginia. . . . It wasn't until 1648 that Taverns were licensed in Manhattan. . . . America was really discovered by a stay-up who couldn't sleep. . . . Else what was he doing up at 2 30 in the morning, which was the hour when the cry of "Land Ho" was first sounded.

Although he is wholly Irish, Morton Downey is a Wallingford, Conn., boy. . . . Cats in Mountain Lakes, N. J., can't run loose without bells on their necks. . . . Joe Rines, whose orchestra has a string section composed of nine violins, plays those Viennese waltzes from original manuscripts. . . . They were sneaked out of Austria for him by friends.

Sure wish I was down in Nags Head, N. C. . . . The channel bass are running strong . . . But it takes money to ride trains. . . . Wish I had money. . . . It was just 300 years ago this summer that the benedictine monk, Dom Prignon, learned how to bottle champagne. . . . Dom was cellarer to the Abbey of Hautvillers, near Epernay. . . . And while we are on the subject of liquors, let us take up the matter of sherry, which is really an English corruption of the word Jerez . . . sherry is an old, old wine, and hard to make. The best "sherry" grapes grow in Spain.

A SPONGE is not a vegetable; it is an animal. . . . June Lang and Arleen Whelan are ex-manicurists . . . For the first time since the war Italy is reviving the famous Pie di Grotto festival, at Naples. . . . And the works of a Brooklyn lad will be prominent in most of the celebrations. . . . This is Raymond Scott, nee Harry Warnow, brother of Mark Warnow, the orchestra conductor.

Personal nomination for the best movie of the year: Fatty Arbuckle in "The Knockout," revived after 20 years. . . . Another nifty is the seventh episode of "Plunder," with Pearl White, the bold beauty, who gets into and out of many a tight spot.

Hoover's Recent Speech Perplexes

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Judging from their recent utterances, there seems to be a certain sort of partial sympathy in economic reasoning between Ex-President Hoover and the Wisconsin La Follette brothers.

This is remarkable.

Not long ago one surely would have classed the Californian among ultra-conservatives; the La Follettes as liberals to the point of near-radicalism.

Yet some of the ex-president's expressions in the course of his late Republican grass roots address at Oklahoma City jibed very well with clauses in Governor "Young Phil's" speech in launching the newly-stimulated Progressive movement and with various things that Senator "Young Bob" has been saying for quite a while.

* * *

HOOVER AGREES

Notably "Young Phil" put himself on record in opposition to restraints upon production.

He declared also against public "spoon feeding."

Former President Hoover agrees with him as to both items.

"Young Bob," deploring persisting governmental deficits, has clamored for a broader taxation base to wipe them out.

The former president views the piling up of the federal debt with as much alarm as does "Young Bob." He doesn't argue so much for higher taxes, but he strenuously urges governmental economy.

* * *

BOB ALSO OFF

The former White House tenant does not particularly attack Rooseveltian objectives, but he does emphatically and adversely criticize Rooseveltian methods of attempting to arrive at them.

Ditto "Young Phil."

"Young Bob" has been so loyal a New Dealer that, when "Young Phil" took the anti-New Deal warpath, politicians wondered whether there had not been a break between the brethren. It now is apparent that "Young Bob," also, is "off the reservation."

* * *

QUEER TRIO

The former president warns that New Dealerism is undermining democracy.

"Young Phil" approximately indorses this conclusion.

"Young Phil" does not indorse it quite so unequivocally—not yet. Still, he seems to be on the way to doing so.

I do not contend that the La Follettes and Hoover are right versus Roosevelt. I contend only that they are a queer trio to be, evidently, gravitating into the same camp.

An alliance between a couple of lions and a lamb would have nothing on such a tie-up.

* * *

STEWART'S VIEW

Is Hoover turning liberal?

Or are the La Follettes turning conservative?

It is hard to say.

Personally, throughout his White House term, I always considered Hoover a reactionary. I'm not so sure now. He had a depression which he couldn't help. It was an inevitable World war afterclap. Maybe he didn't fight it as effectively as he might. Maybe he did. It was due, anyway. He talks at present like a good, enlightened Democrat.

I discount the La Follettes a trifle. They're a bit like politicians, butting in at the psychological moment.

* * *

A COME-BACK?

In 1940, speaking as of today, who would you bet on?

Roosevelt? The third term tradition would be against him.

No other Democrat stands out.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, as a Republican? He isn't quite of the necessary caliber. And no other Republican stands out.

"Young Phil" La Follette (not "Young Bob." He hasn't the appeal). Well, "Young Phil" looks doubtful at present. His "movement" may develop, but it lags thus far.

Hoover? It would be amazing, but Grover Cleveland staged a "come-back."

Wart Magic

It is hard for a grown-up to say just what is the accepted procedure nowadays among children for getting rid of warts on the hands. Children always have their own system of magic about such things, changing a little in procedure from generation to generation but remaining the same in principle.

One reader says the sure cure for warts when he was young was to bury a dishrag under a stone doorstep. When the rag rotted, the wart would be gone.

There must be countless variations of this formula. An old-timer recalls that a common method in his boyhood was for the afflicted to rub a penny on the wart and then throw it away over his left shoulder, making no effort to find it again. Another way was to bury the penny under the house eaves, where the water dripped on it.

The remarkable thing about it is that such magic always seemed to work. It merely took a little longer than the modern, scientific practice of burning them off with silver nitrate or an electric needle.

WORDS OF THE WISE

The history of the past is a mere puppet show—a little man comes out and blows a little trumpet and goes in again.—Longfellow.

Timely Editorial

Would the Counsel Be Taken?

The Associated Press reports the statement of "some of the more conservative advisers" of the president that Mr. Roosevelt is considering the creation of a new "inner council" of leading business men "to study and make recommendations on economic problems."

The department of commerce has had a business advisory council for several years. It is made up of a wide range of industrial leaders. On numerous occasions it has studied and made recommendations on economic problems. But, virtually without exception, the recommendations have been ignored. The proposals of other "inner councils" were chosen instead. These were the ideas of the theorists and the reformers, as opposed to those of practical and experienced men.

If now that policy is seen to have been a mistake, a serious mistake from the standpoint of the public welfare, it is all to the good. But confirmation is needed. There has been no public admission of errors in policy.—Kansas City Times.

CHAPTER III

"Help yourself," he suggested curtly, as Odell dropped into a chair and drew a cigarette case from the pocket of his flannel slacks. "I would suggest," the older man went on dryly, "that you cultivate the practice of eating a substantial morning meal. And you smoke entirely too much."

"Habit," was the laconic answer. "A lot of your fresh air and sunshine up here will soon put me on my feet. I'm glad I thought to have my canoe shipped on. I went out yesterday afternoon and had a good sun bath." There was a sudden light in his blue eyes as he recalled his unexpected companion on the lake. Hilliary had been rather constantly in his mind since he sat watching her hasten in the direction of the bathhouse and disappear. His conscience was not altogether clear. Rather a low trick he had played on her. He was recalled to the present by his uncle's dry voice.

"I was looking for you. I planned to take you through the mill."

"Sorry. I thought you closed up Saturday afternoons."

"We do. But there's always next week to be reckoned with . . . . responsibilities don't indulge in holidays. When you have finished with your coffee, I want to see you in the library. We can have an hour's talk before church time."

"Very well. I'll be there in just a minute."

* * *

Odell watched his relative with a speculative eye as the little man pushed back his chair, reached for the cane that was hanging on it and limped stiffly from the room. His footfalls barely had died when Mrs. Kime entered the dining-room. Her keen eyes and the lines at the corners of her mouth seemed to soften as she looked down into the young man's friendly face.

"I'm afraid I'm upsetting your regime terribly, Mrs. Kime," he observed soberly, tapping his cigarette ash into his saucer. "Am I?"

"Not if you mean what I think you do," she answered shortly. "But I wish you'd eat some breakfast. Wouldn't you like an egg and a slice of toast? It wouldn't take but a minute."

"No thank you." He regarded her thoughtfully. "Mrs. Kime?"

"Call me Annie. I don't mind. I'm more used to it."

"I will," Odell agreed promptly, flashing her one of his genial smiles. "And I'm Clay . . . to my old friends. I'm sure I remember seeing you when I was a very small boy. My father brought me here."

"Yes. He did. That was soon after you lost your mother."

"I know. Father never would say what he and Uncle Romulus fell out over. I suppose it wouldn't be sporting to ask if you know."

Annie's moth tightened grimly. "Those two men never did get on together like they should, marrying sisters and all. I don't think they ever saw each other after the time you're talking about. That was years before Mrs. Wardlaw died."

"I know they didn't. I had very nearly forgotten I had an uncle, until he hunted me up I don't know yet how he located me But here I am."

"He's smart," Annie contributed. "Plenty smart." She picked up a handful of dishes and departed for her kitchen, while Clayton rose from his chair with a rueful face and prepared to attend the conference in the library.

"I wonder if I've been smart," he muttered half-aloud.

* * *

There was nothing reassuring in the sharp glance Romulus bestowed upon him when he entered the library. The old man laid the book he had been reading face-up on the table and deposited his spectacles on the open pages. "Sit down," he ordered, indicating a nearby chair. He leaned back and assumed his familiar pose, the tips of his fingers pressed tightly together.

"I hadn't taken you into the mill before for two reasons, Clayton," he began in a harsh, dry voice. "I wanted to give you a general set-up of the business first . . . so you'd know what it was all about, before you started looking around and getting under foot. And I wanted to get things lined up before the office force knew of our arrangement. I think we've covered the story pretty well."

Odell nodded without committing himself. He had heard all this.

"I understand from your employers," Romulus continued, "that you were something of an expert on costs and production. That's what I want you to turn your attention to I think you'll find our costs are as low as anybody's . . . lower maybe. But I'm not too old a dog to learn new tricks, if they'll do me any good. Bear in mind, though, I don't want any folderols that will take a bunch of new clerks to keep going. The way business is, costs have got to go down. Not up, mind you I'm willing to see what you can do. If you make good, you won't regret it. I expect to be around here for a long time yet, but I'm not so young as I once was. I built my mill from the ground up and I want to see it go on after I'm finished. Blood's thicker than water. If you can make the grade, I'd rather see you carry on than some outsider."

It was a long speech for Romulus. The last words were pitched to a high key. His nephew nodded again without speaking. There was something like a glint of amusement in his eyes, which his relative must have detected.

"But hark ye, young man!" he cautioned sharply, "Don't get an idea that you won't have to toe the mark, same as everybody else that works for me. Do things my way, and it will pay you pretty handsomely some day. If you don't . . . I can still manage the business, same as I do right now. That's clear, is it?"

"Still clear." The two words were spoken gently, but a distinct edge was apparent in Odell's tone. "After all, Uncle, there is nothing like getting off on the right foot. For both of us, that is."

"What d'ye mean by that, sir?"

"Just this. I had a good position and good prospects when you took the trouble . . . I mean when you were kind enough to hunt me up. I happen to know that you looked me up pretty thoroughly."

"Well, and why not?"

"It was the perfectly logical thing to do. For the same reason that I secured a report on the Norwood Mills before we came to an understanding. I also submitted your proposition fully to Mr. Ogleby before I resigned. He advised me to take your offer, even though it meant less money to begin with. I still am somewhat at a loss to know why you insisted upon our arrangement being put in writing and signed. But I have signed it and I intend to go through with all its provisions to the best of my ability."

"And just why are you explaining all this?" was the testy question he received in reply.

"Perhaps for no good reason, Uncle Romulus. Unless it is that your attitude persists in suggesting that I am totally inexperienced and in need of discipline. I'll admit that I know very little about your manufacturing details. On the other hand, I feel perfectly qualified by my business education and training to handle any reasonable problems that are likely to crop up in a plant as small and compact as yours appears to be. I intend to devote my best efforts and my time to the job. On the other hand, I expect to take the recreation I'm accustomed to and live normally. I thought I'd better mention that before we go further. Those night sessions we've been holding in here have given me the impression that 18 hours a day is about what you consider fair."

"Why . . . why, you . . .!"

"Yes, sir?"

"I never tolerate effrontery from any employe, high or low. I don't propose to begin with you, Clayton. Perhaps I have made a mistake after all."

"Oh, no, Uncle Romulus. You haven't ' the young man assured him cheerfully. "That agreement says that either one of us is at liberty to cancel it on 30 days' notice. Right?"

"Yes, but I . . ."

"I'll take care of that, if you like," Clayton interrupted amiably. "We'll play I gave you notice 30 days ago today. No ill feelings. How's that?"

Romulus stared for an instant, blinking rapidly.

"Come, come!" he snapped. "We shall get on well enough, I dare say. After dinner, we'll go down and look around the plant. I must be starting for church. You'd better join me."

Sunday proved a long day for Hilliary Layne, although she was thankful enough for a brief respite before what promised to be a still more unpleasant Monday. Her chief reaction to the canoe episode was hot resentment, rather evenly divided between herself and Clayton Odell. Why had she been dumb enough to let him draw her out that way? She had only herself to blame for that. But that man had no earthly business to do the thing he had done! A fresh wave of indignation swept over her every time she recalled that humorous light in his eyes It was the most attractive thing about him, that and the droll way he said things.

But all the time he had been laughing to himself. At her! That was the humiliating part. All the time thinking she was a little simp. It wouldn't be at all surprising if he had gone home and related it all to Mr. Wardlaw... good joke.

NEW BUILDING SPURTS AGAIN

Permits Issued for 3 Homes With Total Valuation of $26,000.

New building for the month of May was boosted more than $26,000 yesterday with the issuance at city hall of permits for the construction of three new residences.

A permit issued to Harry Burghard, 371 Edgewood road, calls for the construction of a new residence and garage at a cost of $10,500. Harry Freitcher, 273 Davis road, will build a new home and garage valued at $7,500, and L. D. Swisher, 563 Andover road, was issued a permit for a new home and garage to cost $8,500.

Other permits went to the Modern Homes company for construction of a three-car garage at 168 West Third street to cost $600; H. R. Kreischer, 79 Heineman boulevard, for remodeling of residence at a cost of $600; H. T. Fife, 135 North Weldon avenue, for remodeling of residence at a cost of $125; A. J. Knight, 567 Woodland road, for garage valued at $350, and Charles Tracht, 81 Poplar street for addition to his home at a cost of $50.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

DEFENSE FUND OF AUSTRALIA 213 MILLIONS

Air Force Receives Biggest Item in Three-Year Arms Program for Country.

(By United Press)

SYDNEY—The Australian government will spend $213,000,000 on defense works during the next three years.

Prime Minister Joseph A. Lyons announced after consultation with the council of defense that the government, had decided to spend $124,000,000 in addition to the appropriations for the maintenance of defense forces now organized and apart from the civil aviation fund for the next three years.

The expenditure will include $38,900,000 for the navy, $27,500,000 for the army, $44,000,000 for the air force, and $14,000,000 for munition factories.

Premier Lyons gave details of the new defense program in what he called a "personal message to Australia" broadcast throughout the country over 106 radio stations.

The naval appropriations will be used to purchase two modern cruisers of 7,000 tons each, with 6-inch guns, from the British government; to construct two sloops and three local seaward defense vessels, to modernize the two 10,000-ton cruisers Canberra and Australia, to increase the navy's personnel by 1,500 and to complete defenses of the main ports.

Army to be Enlarged.

The fund for the army will be used to strengthen coast defenses, increase permanent troops, and raise the standard of efficiency of the militia, although its strength will not be increased.

The first line strength of the air force will be increased from 98 to 198 planes, apart from reserves. Two new squadrons will be stationed at Darwin, one at Brisbane, three at Canberra, one at a New South Wales coastal site, and one at Pearce, western Australia.

The appropriations for munitions factories will enable the government to make additions to gun factories and raise ammunition and explosive factories to full capacity. Five million dollars will be used to enable private industry to supplement the output of government factories.

Premier Lyons said the government had decided to intensify building up of Australia's defenses because recent events had indicated the need for even greater preparedness than ever. The armaments, he said, were necessary to defend the free passage of seaborne trade, both coastal and overseas, and the maintenance of territorial integrity against aggression.

The Pacific ocean's mean depth is much greater than that of the Atlantic.

DEFIES NATURE

so you can have motor protection!

Crucial "V.I." test shows SOHIO Motor Oil flows like "light" oil yet resists heat like "heavy" oil!

Science shows why your motor is safer... why you use less oil between changes with Ohio's first-choice lubricant!

We've gone nature "one better!" Under a patented process we've created an oil that actually resists thickening when cold—that won't thin out like butter when hot. Your motor is safer whatever the temperature.

Feel SOHIO Motor Oil in your fingers when it's poured from the can. It's as "runny" as a light oil. That means you get fast oil circulation—greater protection for your high-speed motor.

Then—when your motor is hot, pull out the oil gauge and feel the oil again. Notice it is rich and full-bodied—that it hasn't thinned out like ordinary oil! That means your motor is safer from heat; that the oil will last longer and save you money!

This amazing resistance to motor temperatures is the greatest protective quality an oil can have. Scientists measure this "safety-factor" with the famous "V.I." test. They know the higher the "V.I.," the better the oil, the better mileage it gives, the better it protects.

In the important "V.I." test, SOHIO Motor Oil has one of the highest safety ratings in the world today. And you pay only 25¢ a quart. You not only pay less—you use less oil, too, because of its low consumption. So, next time, make it SOHIO—the motor oil Ohio prefers above all others regardless of price!

HUGHES URGES BAR TO HELP PICK JUDGES

'Exercise Influence' Against Unqualified Persons, Law Institute Told.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Charles Evans Hughes, chief justice of the supreme court, said today in an address before the annual meeting of the American Law Institute that "a vigilant bar should exercise a potent influence" against the choice of unqualified persons as judges.

In addition to citing the need for "able and industrious" judges and an independent and impartial judiciary, he warned quasi-judicial agencies of the government that the spirit of their action must be the spirit of the just judge."

It was the first public address made by Hughes since the defeat last year of President Roosevelt's court reorganization bill and since the appointment by Mr Roosevelt of Associate Supreme Court Justices Hugo L Black and Stanley F. Reed. He introduced his discussion of the type of judge needed with the statement that there is great need for "continued respect for the judicial tradition of independence and impartiality.

Must Have Training.

"Still the prime necessity in making the judicial machinery work to the best advantage," he continued, "is the able and industrious judge, qualified by training, experience and temperament for his office."

Hughes' warning to quasi-judicial agencies followed by less than three weeks his majority decision which set aside rates promulgated by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace for livestock services at the Kansas City stockyards The court held that Wallace's procedure had not afforded the stock yards a fair trial.

His address today came as the National Labor Relations Board—the government's newest quasi-judicial agency—sought to withdraw some of its pending decisions from circuit courts. The board believes that it may not have complied with the procedural requirements laid down by the supreme court in the stockyards case.

Hughes criticized those who praise the work of administrative boards and commissions at the expense of the work of the judiciary, and said:

"The complexities of our modern life have brought into play rules of conduct which demand for their enforcement new machinery, and it results that a host of controversies as to public and private right are not being decided in courts. The multiplication of administrative agencies is the outstanding characteristic of our time . . .

"Administrative agencies 'informed by experience' and which have shown their capacity for dealing expertly with intricate problems as, for example, the interstate commerce commission, have won a very high degree of public respect."

BOOM ON FOR KALLMERTEN

Mansfielder in Line for State Democratic Chairmanship, Dispatches Say.

He was again about to retire last November, when the senate graft investigation made it impossible to leave, unless he resigned under fire.

Kallmerten, the report said, is acceptable to Walter Heer, Franklin county (Columbus) chairman, who carries a great deal of weight at present with Gov Davey Heer is believed to want the position of national committeeman, and is willing that the state chairmanship go to Kallmerten.

3 Others Considered.

Three others also are being considered for the post, International News Service said. They are John Caren, one of the governor's secretaries, Albert A Horstman, Dayton, and Tom Dye, Urbana. Kallmerten, however, is believed to have the "inside track."

Should Davey be defeated in the primary by Sawyer, however, the picture would be entirely changed. Kallmerten's chances depend entirely on a Davey victory in August.

Kallmerten and Davey have been especially close in recent months, both Mansfield and Columbus observers said today.

Kallmerten became county Democratic executive committee chairman in 1936 succeeding Carl Stander Although he has been active in Democratic affairs he has never held or sought political office.

Should Kallmerten become state chairman, he would be the second Mansfielder to hold that post. Henry G. Brunner, now Ohio manager of the HOLC, was state Democratic chairman for six years, giving up control of the party in 1932.

CABLE FLAYS WOMAN SCORNED

Firmly Denies He Employed Wife's Killer; Attorney Sees Early Release.

Rodebaugh. The funeral was private.

Conneaut police said a second suicide letter was written by Miss Ludwig, giving her sister instructions for the funeral and disposal of her property. The letter was said to have contained a will bequeathing her Conneaut real estate to Mrs. Rodebaugh.

A shotgun charge fired through a window of the Cable home killed Mrs. Cable. In the police investigation that followed a relationship of several years between Dueber Cable and Miss Ludwig was revealed. Both were questioned in connection with the murder and released.

Canton detectives said they expected to talk with Mr. and Mrs. Rodebaugh today.

CONFER TODAY

City, State Officials Meet on O. S. R. Sewage Contract.

City officials were in Columbus today negotiating with the state welfare department for the renewal of the sewer rental contract for the Mansfield reformatory which calls for an increase of 900 per cent over the rate that expired two months ago.

Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert said before he left for the capital city this morning that Assistant Welfare Director Oakley Spaght had asked city officials to be in Columbus this afternoon to meet with the board and go over the proposal submitted to Arthur L. Glattke, superintendent of the institution, early in March.

Styert said the 10-year contract entered into in 1928 had expired, and that he hoped to arrange a shorter term contract today.

Under the terms of the old contract, the institution paid a sewer rental on the monthly population which amounted to approximately $900 per year for the past three years, Styert said.

The new proposal, if accepted by the state welfare department, would cost the state $8,000 annually.

ESCAPE INJURY IN COLLISION

3 Unhurt As Truck and Auto Crash North of Mansfield.

Three persons escaped injury late yesterday when a truck and automobile collided on route 13 one mile north of Mansfield, causing the truck to turn over on the highway.

Deputy Sheriff Glenn Freeman, who investigated the crash, said the handle of a power lawn mower in the truck crashed through the windshield of a car driven by J. J. Feuerbach, of Lakewood. A young woman, whose name was not given, was riding with Feuerbach.

Paul Sullivan of Rocky River, driver of the truck, lost control of the vehicle after the collision. The truck ran up an embankment and rolled over in the highway, Freeman said.

HEAR OF WHEAT INSURANCE PLAN

County Agent, Soils Committee In Coshocton Today For Meeting.

County Agent George B. Ganyard and members of the Richland county soils conservation committee were in Coshocton today to receive instructions on the operation of the federal wheat insurance plan which will be effective with the planting of the 1939 crop next fall.

Federal representatives in charge of the program were to outline the plan to county farm agents and crop committees from the northeast Ohio area. County field men will be appointed by the soils committees later to administer the insurance program.

The plan provides for losses up to 75 per cent of the wheat crop in floods, storms or as a result of drought.

That night the scouts will camp at the fairgrounds. The camporall program on Saturday calls for contests in first aid, fire by friction and signaling, to determine the champions in the area.

The circus and camporall committee is made up of George Smith, chairman, Philip Smith, Clarence Silcott, C. I. Kimmel, and Floyd Dent, Mansfield; Ed Taylor, Ashland; Jack Gay, Galion; Ray Beardsley, Loudonville, and Wayne Carlton and Willard Boyles of Shelby.

Book of the Week

"MUSSOLINI IN THE MAKING," by Gaudens Megaro; (Houghton Mifflin: $3.50).

* * *

For a good many years a Harvard faculty member named Gaudens Megaro has been digging up material on an Italian named Benito Mussolini. Megaro started out to study Italian history, but found himself specializing almost before he realized it.

He says that Mussolini has not yet concealed or destroyed all the source matter on his early career, and proves it by producing some of it. He had difficulties with the Italian police while engaged in research, and although he talked with a good many Italians, including the king and Mussolini, he is careful to protect his helpers, great and small. Much material came from sources which were unaware they were being plumbed.

All this research has been concentrated, so far as "Mussolini in the Making" shows, on Mussolini's early career. This divides itself pretty simply: the boyhood period up to the time of young Benito's first departure for Switzerland; his career as a socialist; the time between his abrupt departure from the socialist fold (and leadership) and the march on Rome; his career since that time, with which the book concerns itself little.

Megaro deduces one very important fact from his research. Mussolini has been upbraided constantly as an inconsistent man—once a rabid socialist, even anarchist, he swallowed his past and became dictator of a state which is precisely the opposite of true socialism, without even a "buy your leave."

Megaro does not think this is the result of inconsistency, but of expediency. He believes Mussolini an extremely consistent man, because he also believes Mussolini has never had but one object in his mature life. That is to make Mussolini the most powerful man alive.

Viewed so, all the acts of Mussolini's life fall into a pattern. One year he can denounce the "persecution" of a man who assassinates a "tyrant," and another year he can execute a man for attempting to assassinate him. All because it is Mussolini, not the principle, who matters.

The book is full of information, more temperate than might be expected, and except for the long quotations is quite readable.

Lady Never Felt Better in Her Life

Now Taking Famous Medicine—World's Tonic

Says She's Satisfied—World of Good Done Her

Please feel free to come in and ask about World's Tonic at Central Drug Store. You don't have to buy. You might be interested in looking over some of the numerous good reports we are getting every day about this famous medicine. We can't print them all in your local paper but here's one from Mrs. Sarah Slater of 1302 Duncan St., Massillon, Ohio which some women might fit to themselves.

"Unstrung nerves and an all over shaky feeling made it difficult to do my housework or sew. I'd feel blue and depressed and getting such little sleep at night made mornings miserable. Sitting around with no ambition for housework made the days just drag by. My stomach was so upset I almost detested the sight of food. At times nothing could tempt me to eat. I was never free of constipation for a day. Gas and bitter tasting liquids would follow any attempt at eating. Aches and pains in general were always with me. At times I thought my symptoms meant rheumatism or neuritis. Then again a bloating and pressing would make my breathing short and I wondered if that had anything to do with heart trouble.

"One evening recently, I went to a card party and passed up the refreshments being served and that brought on talk which led to some of the women telling of World's Tonic. So much good was said that I became a user. My constipation for the first time in years became much better and at once. That seemed to solve most all my other problems and it all sums up by me being able to say I never felt better in my life. I do my housework regularly now and really enjoy it. And you don't catch me passing up refreshments any more. It has done me world's of good and I'm well satisfied."

Brazil Pushes Fascist Revolt Purge, Jails Crowded

QUICK TRIALS, DEATH AHEAD FOR PLOTTERS

Search of Homes by Dictator's Troops Uncovers Evidence of Well-Planned Uprising.

(By Associated Press)

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil — Brazil's strong man president, Getulio Vargas, invoked full military and police action today to wipe out forever Fascist greenshirts, whose three and one-half hour rebellion failed because they did not know the government palace was without a garrison within its walls.

Police, with 500 of the rebels already in jail, spread through the city, searched every suspected fascist's home, made more arrests and found evidence the revolt was well planned but without co-ordinated execution.

Press Hunt For Leader.

They pressed a nation-wide search for the fugitive Plinio Salgado, head of the greenshirts and allegedly the "intellectual leader" of yesterday's abortive uprising. Salgado has been in hiding for several months.

The rebels made their attack yesterday morning against President Vargas' palace, the residence of the chief of staff of the army, and other strategic points—but they lacked the one vital piece of information that could have carried them to at least momentary success.

J. Alberto Lins De Barros, former charge d'affaires who helped defend the president's palace, told about it today.

"I believe the attackers did not know the palace was completely without an internal garrison, otherwise they would have advanced into the palace instead of fighting in the gardens," he said.

"The truth is the president's life was in imminent danger."

Vargas, with his dark-eyed 23-year-old daughter, Donna Alzyra, and only five others were inside ready to fight off the attackers from palace windows, but fighting outside apparently convinced the rebels they faced a strong body of defenders. Arriving reinforcements saved the palace and the attackers capitulated.

Orders Martial Law.

Vargas, his position as dictator apparently strengthened, invoked martial law to carry on punitive action against the revolt which ended at 5:30 a. m. yesterday, with 12 dead and 22 injured.

The 500 odd already in jail faced military and police court trial within 24 hours, with death sentences likely at least for the chieftains.

Except for the soldiers and police moving through the streets in small detachments, there was little to indicate today that anything untoward had occurred.

Ford Hurls New Challenges On NLRB Decisions

NEW YORK —(INS)— The Ford Motor company today challenged the national labor relations board to explain the processes by which it arrived at its decision holding the company guilty of violating the Wagner act.

Particularly, the Ford company asked if Benjamin Cohen or Thomas Corcoran, the New Deal legislation drafters, had any hand in the board's functioning or if John L. Lewis or Homer Martin had been consulted.

The challenge was in the form of interrogatories filed in the United States supreme court of appeals in Covington, Ky., where the Ford company is appealing a court order which permitted the NLRB to withdraw an order filed against the motor firm on Dec. 23.

The counsel connected with the prosecution, review or decision of the Ford case, was a member of any union and particularly any union affiliated with the CIO.

When it comes to fishing, Mrs. Martin L. Levering, 194 Bowland road, is in a class with the experts. Arms don't grow long enough to describe the size of the fish she caught recently off West Palm Beach, Fla. The "catch," a sail fish, was seven feet, four inches in length, and tipped the scales at 50 pounds. And landing it was not a picnic, either, Mrs. Levering says. The fish battled a half hour before admitting defeat. The fish has been mounted and is now on exhibition at the Levering dairy on South Diamond street.

There also will be a lot of animals such as are seen only by heavy imbibers, such as gooks and hootuses, and those funny little animals that clowns carry around with them in circuses. The scouts will use the animals in the "animal act" in their circus.

TAKE UP SCHOOL FINANCING WOES

Three Representatives of Ohio Education Association to Speak Here Tonight.

Three representatives of the Ohio Education assocation will discuss state school finances and propose measures to combat the campaign for repeal of the sales tax at a public meeting at 8 p. m. today in the Mansfield Senior high school auditorium.

Speakers scheduled for the session, one of a series of six being held in the state, include Walton P. Bliss, executive secretary; B. A. Stevens, assistant secretary for research, and Karl H. Berns, assistant secretary of field supervision, for the Ohio Education association.

Supt. W. L. Miller of Mansfield schools, who will be chairman of the meeting, said teachers, P. T. A. members and others interested in schools have been invited to attend the session and to offer suggestions.

The discussion, Miller said, will center on the need for legislative action to rescue the state's schools from financial disaster under the foundation program. School officials have estimated that the school deficit will be $12,000,000 by the end of this year.

Gov. Martin L. Davey has called a special session of the state legislature for next November to act on a program for financing the schools.

COURIER BRINGS CITY OFFICIAL INVITATION TO WORLD'S FAIR

Mansfield today was one of the 1,000 communities in the nation to receive an official invitation to New York's 1939 World's fair.

E. P. Oesterling of South Euclid, a World's fair courier who is one of the 49 touring the nation in Buick goodwill cars, visited city hall yesterday afternoon and presented the city, through Mayor Claude M. Hunter, with an invitation to the fair in which 63 foreign nations will participate.

The Ohio Goodwill ambassador also presented Mayor Hunter with an official token of the fair which is being held in commemoration with the 150th anniversary of the inauguration of George Washington in New York.

The token, the size of a quarter, bears the inscription of the trylon and perisphere, the theme building of the fair, and was given to the mayor as he signed the scroll of honor that will be shown in the Ohio state exhibit at the fair.

The courier was met on Park avenue west at the city limits and was accompanied to the city building by a police escort.

Following a luncheon with city officials, Oesterling outlined the features of the fair which will open in New York in May, 1939. He said on a site of more than 1,000 acres, a miniature city is being built that will be three times the size of the "Century of Progress" exposition several years ago in Chicago and will represent an expenditure of approximately $150,000,000.

The officials car with its miniature of the perisphere and trylon was displayed in various parts of the city yesterday and this morning before the courier left for Ashland.

Liberty Park Pool to Get New Diving Board This Year.

With the opening of Liberty park swimming pool set for May 30, Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert today announced plans for the installation of a new diving board at the pool.

A 10-foot diving board has been ordered for the pool and is expected to arrive in Mansfield within the next few days. A five-foot board was installed last season when the pool was first opened.

Styert said that preparations were being rushed in order to have everything in readiness for the opening Memorial day. Russell VonWeider, park manager, has been at work for the last few days getting the equipment into shape in order that water can be run into the pool before the opening day.

A new cash register has been purchased so receipts can be checked by the city auditor, Styert said.

NEW PLEA TO BE SENT ASSEMBLY, CAPITAL HEARS

Building Program Might Be Included in Legislation at Special Session.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—The special legislative session summoned to consider a $17,000,000 relief program Monday also may be asked by Gov. Martin L. Davey to enact a state welfare building program.

Availability of federal funds to help finance the building program, a reliable source indicated today, probably will be the determining factor in the governor's decision whether to ask legislation again to enable the state to carry it to fulfillment.

While the governor's advisers polished tentative relief program drafts, official figures showed that industrial Ohio had one out of every five of its 6,600,000 residents dependent upon either Works Progress Administration aid or general relief.

Budget WPA List.

Ohio's 233,500 persons on WPA rolls, more than any other state, and 824,500 persons benefit from the wages they receive. State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson's figures disclosed that 448,000 individuals were dependent on general relief funds. The total of 1,272,500 receiving public aid is the highest in Ohio's history.

The governor is expected to recommend a building program entailing an outlay of $10,000,000 to $15,000,000, to be amortized over a period of 50 years, if federal funds are made available. Ohio labor leaders have declared that such a program was needed to restore prosperity in the state.

Inasmuch as federal funds probably would be available chiefly as loans, the question of providing a constitutional method to accept them is moot.

On previous occasons the governor has urged creation of an institutional building authority on the order of a separate corporation to handle the financing, but the legality of such an arrangement has been questioned by several legislators inasmuch as the state's constitutional debt limitation is only $750,000.

What other legislation the governor will call for before the session completes its work is problematical. Without divulging their nature, John M. Caren, executive secretary to the governor, said many requests for special enactments had been received from various groups and organiations.

Jaster Called Again in Court Hearing of 'Hot-Mix' Suit.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Highway Director John Jaster, jr., resumed testimony in common pleas court today in the $3,000,000 "hot mix" hearing before Judge Henry L. Scarlett.

Jaster, a defendant in the taxpayer's injunction suit charging a conspiracy between highway officials and 35 contract-members of the hot mix bituminous industry of Ohio, incorporated began testifying after Judge Scarlett overruled a series of objections voiced by defense attorneys, led by Charles S. Druggan, counsel for the hot mix organization.

The defense had centered its attack on the anti-trust allegations of the suit, declaring that any action of this nature should be brought by the attorney general or the prosecuting attorney.

Ill-Fated Brazilian Revolt Centers U. S. Attention On Inroads of Dictator Nations

—By DeWITT MacKENZIE
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Expert)

NEW YORK—The Integralist (Fascist) revolution in Brazil would seem to give emphasis to the Washington administration's warning of last month that the Monroe Doctrine still exists and outsiders are to keep predatory hands off the western hemisphere.

One hastens to add there has been no charge that this revolt had foreign backing. However, the green-shirted Integralists who are credited with engineering the uprising have built their house largely with material made in the Mussolini-Hitler brickyard.

Brazil's big Italian population, estimated to total at least a million and a half, is chiefly Fascist. Germans probably run close to 200,000, and most of them are Nazi.

* * *

Dr. Madeira De Freitas, a Brazilian physician who has described himself as "the Goebbels (propagandist) of Integralism," said at the end of 1936 that the Integralist chieftain, Plinio Salagado, had shown his plans to Mussolini. The Italian dictator was quoted as predicting:—"You will rule Brazil by 1937."

The point of all this is that whatever the racial complexion of the Integralists may be, and irrespective of who inspired the revolt, they still think in terms of the European dictatorships.

An indication of what the advent of Fascism or Nazism in Brazil would mean may be seen from the fact that when the present dictator, Dr. Getulio Vargas, seized power last year there was great rejoicing in Rome and even Berlin, because it was believed Vargas was establishing an out-and-out Fascist state. But it proved to be just plain Vargasism.

A Fascist or Nazi-Fascist state in Brazil would be a highly important recruit to the anti-democracy bloc. It would mean preferential economic advantages and extension of colonization.

In connection with the Washington warning our representative in Peru, Ambassador Steinhardt, urged in a broadcast to all Latin-American countries that they present a united front against old world "predatory forces" seeking "new or lost fields to conquer." He was supposed to refer to the efforts (including the bombardment of propaganda) being made by Germany, Italy and Japan to gain a foothold in various South American countries.

Westbrook Pegler's column, which usually occupies this space, will appear tomorrow.

These three totalitarian states have made much progress in Brazil. Their colonies there are large.

* * *

The United States as a whole is taking much more thought of South America than previously.

We now know among many other facts that Brazil is a potential treasure house. It is bigger in area than our own country, and has an estimated population of 48,000,000. It is undeveloped as yet, but it will be a great field for trade in time.

Many believe the future foreign interests of the United States will lie mainly in this hemisphere.

Hollywood Speaks—

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Right up in the "Snow White" class for popular appeal should go "The Adventures of Robin Hood," a film to delight all ages.

The new Robin Hood is Errol Flynn, this town's premier swashbuckling star, only one of consequence since Douglas Fairbanks settled down. The tall rangy Irishman brings the romantic figure to brilliant and dashing life in a production so well-proportioned throughout that no single performance can dominate it.

The picture represents a happy projection of the spirit of adventure and romance, its elements woven so skillfully that even its superlative color photography intrudes no more than Erich Wolfgang Korngold's fine musical scoring. Into the screen play are blended many of the familiar Robin Hood legends, pointed up to fit naturally into the exciting, well-knit plot. If the story, and Robin's heroic deeds to confound Prince John and Gisbourne, sometimes strain credulity, it must be remembered that this is a legend, a fanciful adventure.

* * *

Robin's Maid Marian is pretty Olivia De Havilland. Una O'Connor, only other woman cast, plays her maid for excellent comedy with Herbert Mundin as Much the miller's son. Basil Rathbone is his suavest, blackest villain as Gisbourne, and Claude Rains as Prince John is remarkable in a role that might have been negative. Patric Knowles is Will Scarlett, Alan Hale is Little John (the role he played in the Fairbanks silent version) and Eugene Palette is Friar Tuck. Ian Hunter is a kingly figure as Richard the Lion Heart.

* * *

Credited for direction are Michael Curtiz and William Keighley. The latter—in a gesture unusual to Hollywood—has publicly thrown the laurels to Curtiz, insisting he walked off the assignment midway in conviction it would be a "turkey."

In "Vivacious Lady" boy meets girl, boy marries girl—and then has several reels of trouble breaking the news to his parents and claiming his bride. Ginger Rogers is the cabaret singer and James Stewart the young college professor who, instead of rescuing his cousin (James Ellison) from her clutches, falls hard himself, marries her—and then must introduce her to family and campus at dear old Alma Mater. His college-president father is Charles Coburn, his mother Beulah Bondi, his fiancee Frances Mercer.

* * *

As a human comedy with human characters, "Vivacious Lady" is sure to find favor with audiences sated with insanity on the screen, hungry for sincere romance minus slaps and socks. George Stevens' direction displays originality, frequently is brilliant, rarely strained. "Vivacious Lady" should be seen.

"Kentucky Moonshine" is the latest from the Ritz Brothers' bag of movie tricks—an audience comedy whose high point is the trio's presentation of "Snow White." Pretty Marjorie Weaver shines. It's very funny—especially for Ritz enthusiasts.

"Sinners in Paradise" is a sort of "Grand Hotel" on a tropical island. An assorted cast of characters is pitched thereon by the crash of a trans-Pacific air liner. John Boles and servant are the only inhabitants—and then a lot of things happen. Madge Evans is the girl.

"The Saint in New York": Louis Hayward smoothly impersonates that mysterious fellow who goes about attending to other people's business, in this case wiping up a New York gang. The attractive heroine is Kay Sutton.

Fill Life With New Interests

By VIRGINIA LEE

'DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a married woman in my late thirties. Have been married ten years. This is what worries me, Miss Lee: I have lost all the confidence I ever had. Why? Well, I have been lied to, cheated and deceived until I feel I cannot stand it any longer.

"We live in the country. I love the country, but we have no children and I am alone from early morning until late night, sometimes all night.

"I find myself getting more and more resentful about the whole thing, and hating it. He is the type of person you can't talk to. You can pry and pry and you don't know any more than you did at the start. I am alone, eat, sleep alone, never have a night I can look forward to as being my night with my husband, and when I go to a show or any place I have to go alone.

Once Very Much In Love.

"At one time I was very much in love with him, but things have happened that have slowly killed all that. All the dreams I once had of us having a home and growing old together seem to have vanished, and it has come to a place where it seems I cannot go ahead; that it just isn't worth the agony I go through to salvage a marriage that means so little to the other party. I love my home and have worked and helped in every way I know how, and I hate to break it up, but what should I do? — NEITHER WIFE NOR WIDOW."

I am deeply sorry for you, and there are just two things you can do. Either keep your home and make a life for yourself apart from your husband, as he makes his separate from you, or leave and make a new life. I am taking it for granted that your letter states the facts as they are, and that you are not mistaken in thinking it not his work that takes your husband away from you so much of the time.

In the first of the two courses open to you, you can cultivate friends whose tastes are similar to yours. You will find women your own age, or younger or older, who are also lonely and who will be glad to go with you to shows or come to your home and ask you to theirs. You can cultivate hobbies and maybe take courses in some line that interests you, and so fill the life that your husband's preoccupation leaves so empty. You can keep your home cozy and homelike and welcome him there when he comes, doing "your own work," as they quaintly say. But don't "pry," as you put it, into his life. Be companionable and tell him of your interests if he seems interested. Is this too hard to do? It is better than being so unhappy. It is only a substitute, of course, of the home life you would like, but one can grow to be fairly happy in such a life.

The other alternative is to leave. As you no longer love your husband, why accept his support and expect him to be a companion to you? I'm not very keen for divorce, but when two people have lost all love for each other and are not in the least companionable, why stay together? You have no children, then why not strike out and make a new life for yourself? It is not easy, of course, but many people have done it, and maybe it would be the happiest way out.

Grace Can Be Gained By Effort

By JULIET SHELBY

(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

Crown Princess Juliana of Holland will undoubtedly start having her baby daughter Beatrix trained in the courtliness that becomes a queen as soon as she is old enough. It is necessary that even a very young princess know how to walk correctly, courtsey and use her arms, head and hands with grace and charm.

Even though we are none of us princesses it would have been a great thing for us if we could have had the early training that the little Dutch princess will have. This sort of training will keep one from being awkward, fumbling and ill at ease. All actresses have to learn these rules of bodily control, and attractive and beautiful women are masters of them.

If you have a young child teach her to walk like an Indian, with her feet parallel. And encourage her to go skating as soon as she is old enough. This is wonderful for body control and grace. Rhythmic and folk dancing are also excellent.

There are a few rules, however, that are correctors of awkwardness for both young and old. And it's never too late to begin. Before starting to walk get the right stance by facing the wall and putting your toes, abdomen and the tip of your nose against it. With your arms raised to shoulder height, bend the elbows so that they will also be flat against the wall. When you start walking, your ear, shoulder, hip and instep all should be in a straight line. Always lead with your thigh, bringing your heel down first, not very hard (clumping is never attractive) then roll your weight onto the ball of your foot. Follow the rules for children and keep your feet in a straight line. Imagine that you are balancing something on your head.

Take Dancing Lessons.

To sit down correctly remember to put one foot a little nearer to your chair than the other one. Throw your weight onto that foot and sit straight down with your hands relaxed. The best position for your hands when seated is either in your lap or with one arm relaxed on the arm of your chair. When you are rising from the chair, push up with your back foot and your weight will go on to your forward foot. This will give you perfect balance, and it will not give the awkward effect of hoisting yourself out of the chair.

Another good tip is to take dancing lessons. Just regular modern ballroom dancing will do wonders for your physical poise. You will get a rhythmic swing to your whole carriage, and as you become a better and better dancer you will lose all that sense of being all hands and feet that is so devastating to your self-assurance. You will soon find that with a graceful posture and dancing feet you will be hard to stop.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Miss Whitlock smiled at Mary, whom she was to guard during my absence, with the same indulgence all of us accord to Dicky's lovely, wilful niece.

"Five commandments?" she repeated. "I fancy I can guess them, but I'd rather hear you say them."

Mary threw back her head and began a droning chant.

"Thou shalt not forget to keep all night chains on the doors day and night.

"Thou shalt never open the door wider than the door chain unless the person knocking is well known.

"Thou snalt have all meals in thy room.

"Thou and thou"—she pointed dramatically first to herself and then to Miss Whitlock — "shall never be separated. Day and night ye shall occupy adjoining rooms.

"Thou"—she indicated the nurse again—"shall move thy belongings into the big suite during my absence, and bar the doors to the single one."

Will Follow Them.

She paused and spread her hands dramatically.

"Go to the head of the class," I told her, laughing, and Miss Whitlock's face mirrored my smile. "Just see that you both remember to obey those commandments, and I shall rest easy about you."

"We shall obey them to the letter," Miss Whitlock said. "I'll move over right now—it will take me about five minutes, and we'll close my room. The maid has finished the room work, so we won't have to open it again until you come back."

It was less than five minutes when, after putting the night lock and chain on her own outside door between her one-room suite and ours, and put up the chains with which I had insisted they should be equipped.

"There!" she said. "Not even an enterprising mosquito has a chance to get in here."

"That's splendid!" I told her, with gratified emphasis. "I can go in peace now."

"We'll speed your departure," Mary said, wrinkling her nose at me, and for the next few minutes she gave me efficient aid in packing my few belongings, and in ordering my car serviced and brought to the door.

When I was all ready, I sat down to the telephone, and with a nonchalant air gave the operator the number of Dicky's studio. She had to ring several times at my insistence before a slightly-bored, masculine voice answered.

Leaves Message.

"Sorry, but Mr. Graham is not here," it said. "No, I have no idea when he will be in. Is there any message?"

"Please say to him," I said, "that Mrs. Graham called him, and wishes him to call his niece at the Lansfield as soon as possible. She has an important message for him."

"I will see that he gets that message," the voice answered, and I hung up the receiver and turned to Mary, carefully preserving the same casual air.

"I think that ought to cover everything," I said. "When he calls, will you tell him about the children?"

"Yes, and I'll swear you wore yourself to a frazzle trying to get him yourself," she answered pertly, and the next second, all her nonchalance gone, she was clinging to me in an emotional farewell.

"Goodby, you darling best of aunts," she whispered. "Don't let anything get you, and hurry back to me as fast as you can. I'm a ship without a rudder when you're not around."

"I'll be back the minute I can get away," I promised, and then I hurried downstairs to my waiting car, nursing a gratified consciousness that I had thrown Mary completely off the track. She was sure, I knew, that I did not intend to telephone her uncle at the magazine office.

I salved my conscience with the sophistry that, indeed, I had no intention of telephoning the magazine. But I had no camouflage for my aims when I turned the car toward the quarter of the city in which the magazine was located. I meant to find my husband.

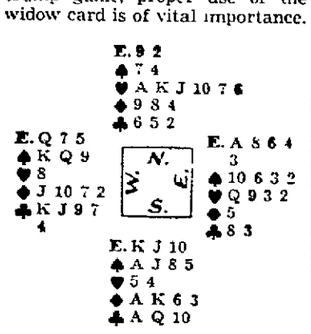
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

FIVE-SUIT NO TRUMP

No Trump contracts will not be as frequent in Five-Suit as at regular contract. One reason is that partners have five chances to find a good suit instead of four, another is that there are more suits to be stopped for no trump, but the main one is that the discarding value of the widow card, to produce singletons and voids, is helpful only to suit contracts. When, however, you get to a no trump game, proper use of the widow card is of vital importance.



(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable. Widow card: Diamond Q.)

Here South opened the bidding with 1-Diamond rather than 1-Spade, to make it easy for his partner to answer with hearts if possible, so he could go into no trump. When his partner responded with 1-Heart as he hoped South called 2-No Trumps and over North's 3-Hearts he bid 3-No Trumps.

When West led the club 7, South counted up his tricks and decided to use the widow diamond Q in his own hand, discarding a spade. As a result he was set when East blocked the hearts and West the diamonds.

If South had put the diamond Q in dummy, as an entry if the hearts didn't break, discarding a club, no power on earth could have kept him from getting 11 tricks—the three he had bid over the "book" of eight.

(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable. Widow card: Heart 4.)

How many tricks will the widow heart 4 be worth to South if he uses it properly when playing Five-Suit Bridge at a contract of 4-Eagles, West having led the diamond K? Should he put it in his own hand or dummy, and what should he discard?

Snooping correct attire for beach and bedroom wear at GOLDSMITH'S today, I was surprised at the wide variety from which the well dressed man can choose and still be well dressed. In robes, he can wear madras, seersucker, or terry cloth in white, solid vivid colors, conservative stripes and patterns or go gay in smashing color combinations and wierd designs. In price, robes range from $2.95 to $9.95. Glover pajamas threw me into a flutter of envy . . . tho how any man can enjoy a night's sleep with those dancing girls and swaying palms on his manly chest is more than I can see. Other smart patterns in the Glover pajamas are the Big Apple and Mexicana. The tariff is $1.95 or $2.50 depending on the pattern. While we're on the subject of furnishings I might tell you about the Arrow, Vassar, and Wilson Bros. underwear at 50c, 75c and $1. Arrow's last word in ensembles brings a break to the men who prefer smart, conservative furnishings. "Berkeley Square" is a smooth white madras with chip pattern . . . the shirt has French cuffs and a soft self collar, it is Sanforized and Mitoga tailored-to-your-torso. ($2.75). The shorts to match have a French back and sell for $1. Handkerchief with contrasting border will set you back 50c. And a gray stripe tie with colors to match is $1.50 . . . and that's really an ensemble! Interwoven hose come in anklet and nu-top, both with elastic tops and cost from 35c to $1. As a last word . . . Saturday is straw hat day at GOLDSMITH'S . . . soft straws and sailors cost as little as $1 and as much as $7.50—they're all in the best approved styles!

"When is a broom not merely a broom?" . . . "When it's a decoration to kitchen and home, too" . . . as are the gay red, green, and blue brooms I snooped at MARTIN'S HARDWARE. At first I thought they were just a novelty—not really for use. But here's the story . . . it seems that the DuPont people perfected a coating to put on the corn in brooms to keep the corn from drying out and leaving a trail behind the sweeping we do . . . well, not satisfied with a colorless protection they thought they'd go a little further and bring more color to our kitchens . . . so now you can get green, red, or blue brooms that absolutely will not dry out for only 75c at MARTIN'S HARDWARE.

Their luggage varies in price and style. Gladstones are $4.98 to $8.95. Lightweight fabric bags so necessary to air travel are $1.29 and $2.39. The whole price range for all types of suitcases is $3.49 to $8.95 (excepting fabric). These suggestions, thought of for you and me to buy ourselves, would make splendid gifts to the graduate, too.
